Discovering the Grandparents of Sven Hög and Anna Stina Johansdotter

By Jeffrey High – May 30, 2015

The Grandparents of Sven Hög and Anna Stina Johansdotter

The last generation of Sven and Anna Stina's ancestors that I received information about back in October of 2006 were their grandparents. According to the packet I was sent, they were:

- The paternal grandparents of Sven Hög were Anders Jaenson and Maja Jonasdatter. (I would later discover this to be false, and that Sven's true paternal grandparents were Anders Isaacsson and Annika Larsdotter.)
- The maternal grandparents of Sven Hög were Sven Nilsson and Anna Månsdotter.
- The paternal grandparents of Anna Stina Johansdotter were Johan Svensson and Annika Johansdotter.
- The maternal grandparents of Anna Stina Johansdotter were Håkan Persson and Maria Jönsdotter.

This illustration represents the grandparents of Sven Hög and Anna Stina Johansdotter

For a year and a half, this generation was the furthest back I knew of Sven and Anna Stina's ancestors. It's unlikely the four High pioneer children of Sven and Anna Stina knew much about their great-grandparents. Likewise, Sven and Anna Stina didn't have much of an opportunity to know their grandparents. Three of Sven's grandparents died before he was born. The only grandparent he knew was Anders Isaacsson, his paternal grandfather, who died when Sven was only seven years old. Although three of Anna Stina's grandparents were still living when she was born, they all died within the next few years. Maria Jönsdotter, her maternal grandmother and last surviving grandparent, died when Anna Stina was only three years old.

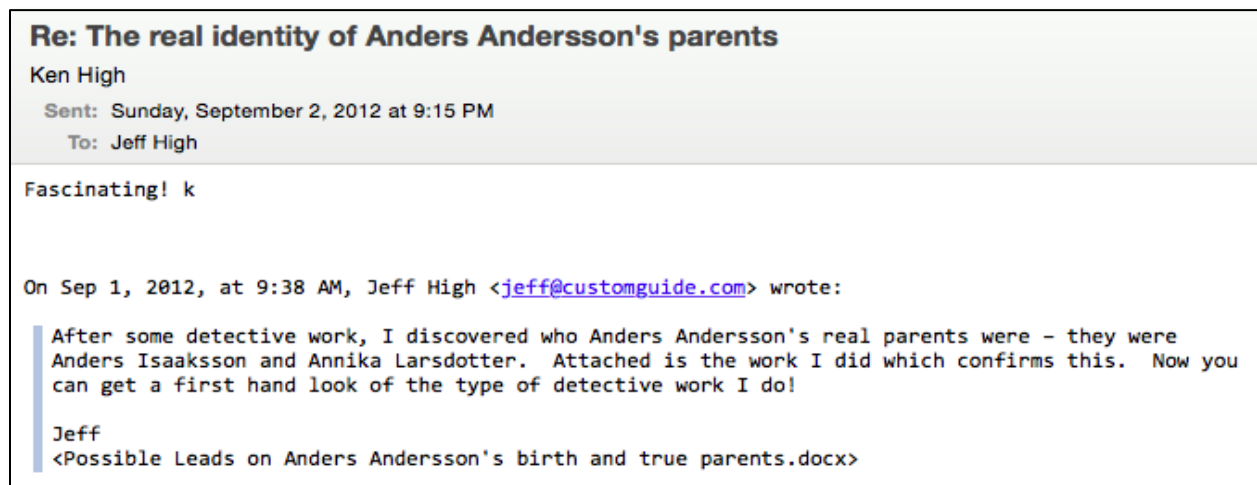

The discovery of the grandparents of Sven and Anna Stina marked significant breakthrough in researching the High family's Swedish ancestors. After two centuries, details of their lives have finally come to light. Learning about their lives not only shows how Sven and Anna Stina's parents were raised, but also gives us a glimpse of what life in 18th Century Sweden was like.

Discovering Anders Isaacsson and Annika Larsdotter

For nearly six years, I believed that Anders Andersson, Sven Hög’s father, was the illegitimate son of Anders Jaensson and Maja Jonasdatter. When I visited Sweden in June of 2011, I visited Äskhult, the manor where Anders Jaensson lived, and Nilstorp, the farm where Maja Jonasdatter lived. However, on August 14th, 2012, I discovered that the Anders Andersson who was the illegitimate son of Anders Jaensson and Maja Jonasdatter died just three days after he was born.¹ Upon making this discovery, I was greatly distraught. I now had no clue who Anders Andersson’s true parents were, and realized that my visits to Äskhult and Nilstorp were in vain.

Fortunately, after conducting some lengthy detective work, I was able to discover the true identities of Anders Andersson parents, Anders Isaacsson and Annika Larsdotter. As described in the last chapter, I made this discovery by checking into Stina Andersdotter, one of the witnesses at the baptism of Johannes Andersson, Anders Andersson’s third eldest child. Household examinations showed that Stina was born at the croft Svenstorp in Norra Solberga in 1783 and that her parents were Anders Isaacsson and Annika Larsdotter. To my delight, when I checked the household examinations for Svenstorp from 1784, I found Anders Andersson was listed in the household!

Upon conducting research on the family of Anders Isaacsson and Annika Larsdotter, I found more evidence which confirmed that Anders and Annika were Anders Andersson’s parents. For example, records showed that Anders Isaacsson had lived at Havsvik and Stumperyd, two of the places where Anders Andersson had lived, that Isaac Andersson, Ander Andersson’s brother lived at Släthult, the farm where Anders and Maria Svensdotter met, and Stina, Ander’s sister, lived at Gullarp, the farm in Flisby Parish where Anders and Maria spent their final days.

An email I sent my uncle Ken High, announcing my discovery of Anders Isaacsson and Annika Larsdotter

3.0. Discovering the Grandparents of Sven Hög and Anna Stina Johansdotter

During the course of the next month, I learned several things about Anders Isaacsson and Annika Larsdotter:

- Anders Isaacsson was born in Lommaryd Parish in 1742. He was the son of Isak Witling and Ingeborg Nilsson.
- Annika Larsdotter was born in Norra Solberga Parish in 1744. Her parents were Lars Andersson and Maria Danielsdotter.
- Anders and Annika had four children: Isaac, Anders, Maja, and Stina.
- Anders and Annika were crofters. For much of their adult lives, they lived at the farm Buckhult in southwest Norra Solberga. They lived at two different crofts at this farm, Svenstorp and Hallebo.
- Annika Larsdotter died at Hallebo, Buckhult, Norra Solberga in 1793.
- Anders Isaacsson spent his final years at Havsvik, Norra Solberga the same farm where the family of his son Anders Andersson was living at the time. He died there in 1808.

Timeline of Research on Anders Isaacsson and Annika Larsdotter

August 31, 2012	I discover that the true identity of Anders Andersson's parents, Anders Isaacsson and Annika Larsdotter. The same day, I learn a number of things about the two, such as when they were married, how many children they had, where they lived, and when they died.
September 2, 2012	I discover the fate of Anders and Annika's oldest son, Isaac Andersson.
September 30, 2012	I discover the identity of Annika Larsdotter's parents, Lars Andersson and Maria Danielsdotter.
November 8, 2012	I discover the identity of Anders Isaacsson's parents, Isac Witling and Ingeborg Nilsson.
November 20, 2012	I discover the fate of Anders and Annika's daughters, Maja and Stina.

Discovering Sven Nilsson and Anna Månsdotter

From the packet of information I received in October of 2006, I learned that Sven Hög’s maternal grandparents were Sven Nilsson and Anna Månsdotter. According to this packet:

- Sven Nilsson was born in Norra Sändsjö Parish in 1726. His parents were Nils Svensson and Catharina Svensdotter.
- Anna Månsdotter was born in Barkeryd Parish in 1734. Her parents were Rustmästre Engdahl and Britta Bengtsdotter. (I later found this information was incorrect. Anna was born in Nässjö Parish and her parents were Måns Olofsson and Maria Engdahl).
- Sven and Anna lived in the village of Gransäng, Barkeryd, where they had five children. Four of these children, Jonas, Sven, Maria, and Beata, survived infancy.

On December 9, 1726 Sven Nilsson, Sven Hög's maternal grandfather, was born in Juseeryd, Sändsjö. His parents were Nils Svensson and Carina Svensdotter. While no research has been done regarding Sven's Nilsson's parents, it's likely that both of their father's names were Sven because of the Swedish naming conventions of the time. Sven spent much of his youth working as a farmer's hand.

Using the information I received from Christer Cronquist, I wrote a three-page file on Sven and Anna, which was included in The High Family (1726-2006) and The High Family (1726-2007) books that I wrote. The information in this file was very basic and didn't give a very detailed description of Sven and Anna's lives. Likewise, it contained erroneous information about Anna's birth and her parents.

In 2008, my fifth cousin, Pia Gudbrand Lindgren contacted me and we exchanged information on Sven and Anna. From her, I learned who Anna's true parents were. Three years later, I traveled to Sweden and visited Gissarp, the farm in Nässjö Parish where Anna grew up.

The first page in the file I wrote on Sven and Anna in The High Family (1726-2007) book

Over the course of the next few years, I learned a tremendous amount of more information about Sven and Anna, such as who their siblings were, the fact that Sven worked as a smith and a master bricklayer, Sven and Anna had a child named Nils who died in infancy, and the fates of all of Sven and Anna's children.

Timeline of Research on Sven Nilsson and Anna Månsdotter

October 6, 2006	I receive a packet on Sven and Anna, containing information on their dates of birth, death, and marriage, who their parents were, most of the places they lived, and when their children were born.
December 23, 2006	The High Family (1726-2006) is released.
December 22, 2007	The High Family (1726-2007) is released.
February 26, 2008	Pia Gudbrand Lindgren, my fifth-cousin, emails me the information she has on Sven and Anna. From this information, I learn that the birth information and parents that I had for Anna were incorrect and that her parents were Måns Olofsson and Maria.
May 31, 2011	I acquire images of most of the birth, marriage, death, and household examination records related to Sven and Anna.
June 1, 2011	I learn that Sven Nilsson worked as a smith.
June 17, 2011	I visit Gissarp, Nässjö Parish, Sweden, the farm where Anna Månsdotter was born.
July 18, 2011	I find out about the fate of Sven and Anna's oldest son, Jonas Svensson.
July 29, 2011	I find out about the fates of two of Sven and Anna's children, Sven and Beata.
January 13, 2013	I find the birth and baptism record of Nils, Sven and Anna's son who died in infancy.
July 29, 2013	I learn that Sven Nilsson also worked as a master bricklayer.
August 27, 2013	I discover the fates of Sven's parents, Nils Svensson and Catharina Svendsdotter. I also learn about Nils's siblings. Finally, I learn that Sven spent some time in the city of Jönköping in the late 1750s.

Discovering Johan Svensson and Annika Johansdotter

From the packet of information I received in October of 2006, I learned that Anna Stina Johansdotter’s paternal grandparents were Johan Persson and Annika Johansdotter. According to this packet:

- Johan Persson was born in Bälaryd Parish in 1736. His father was Sven Samuelsson.
- Annika Johansdotter was born in Marbäck Parish in 1741. Her parents were Johan Persson and Elisabeth Johansdotter.
- Johan and Annika spent much of their lives at the farm Stora Högaskog in Marbäck Parish, where their four children, Sven, Annica, Johannes, and Lishen were born.

Using the information I received from Christer Cronquist, I wrote a three-page file on Johan and Annika, which was included in The High Family (1726-2006) and The High Family (1726-2007) books that I wrote. Although the information in this file didn’t include any errors, it lacked quite a bit of information, such as the identity of Johan’s mother the fates of Johan and Annika’s children, and the fact that they had four children who died in infancy. This file also lacked pictures of any of the farms that Johan and Annika lived.

On June 18, 2011, I visited all of the known places where Johan and Annika lived in Sweden. The same day, I found out about the fate of their oldest daughter, Annica.

Over the course of the next four years, I continued to learn more information about Johan and Annika’s family. A huge milestone in my research on the two occurred on November 19, 2013, when Roland Hermansson, my sixth cousin, contacted me. Roland’s 4th-great-grandmother was Annica, Johan and Annika’s oldest daughter. From Roland, I learned about the identity of Johan’s mother, Elizabeth Arvidsdotter. I also learned that Johan had a sister named Elin.

3.0. Discovering the Grandparents of Sven Hög and Anna Stina Johansdotter

In early 2015, I found the final pieces of information on Johan and Annika. On January 19, I discovered the fate of Lisken, their youngest child. Three months later, on April 9, I acquired images of Johan Svensson's estate records. Just two days later, I found out that Johan and Annika had four other children who died in infancy: Lisken, twin girls named Lisken and Stina, and a son named Johan. Although this was a rather sad discovery, it was also a very informative one.

Discovering Håkan Persson and Maria Jönsdotter

The last set of Sven Hög and Anna Stina’s grandparents I learned about from the packet of information I received in 2006 was on Håkan Persson and Maria Jönsdotter, Anna Stina’s maternal grandparents. According to this packet:

- Håkan Persson was born in Lommaryd Parish in 1728. His birth and baptism can’t be found in Lommaryd’s churchbook, however.
- Maria Jönsdotter was born in 1734 in Linderås Parish.
- Håkan and Maria were married in Linderås in 1758.
- After they were married, Håkan and Maria lived at three different farms in Linderås and Säby Parishes, Vallstorp, Älmås, and Önnarp.
- Håkan and Maria had five children: Nils, Stina, Maria, Greta, and Johannes. (I would later discover that their oldest son was also named Johannes, and was killed by a runaway horse when he was ten years old.

Håkan Persson, Anna Johansdotter's maternal grandfather, was born in 1728 in Skötorp, Lommaryd. Little is known of his early life and there has been no information found documenting when his specific birth date was or whom his parents were. Most likely, he worked as a farmhand in his younger years.

Maria (Maja) Jönsdotter, Anna Johansdotter's maternal grandmother, was born on September 6, 1735 in Bokarp, Linderås. No information has been found regarding whom her parents were. Maria was baptised on September 7th in the Linderås parish.

Using the information I received from Christer, I wrote a three-page file on Håkan and Maria, which was included in The High Family (1726-2006) and The High Family (1726-2007) books that I wrote. Like the file I wrote on Johan Svensson and Annika Johansdotter, the file I wrote on Håkan and Maria didn't contain any errors, but it lacked quite a bit of information, such as the fact that Håkan and Maria's oldest son was named Johannes and he was killed by a runaway horse when he was ten years old. 3.0. Discovering the Grandparents of Sven Hög and Anna Stina Johansdotter

During the next four years, I learned a lot more information about Håkan and Maria, such as the existence of Johannes, their oldest son who died when he was ten, the fates of most of their children, and the fact that Håkan was a farmer who had crofters work for him. On April 9, 2015, I acquired the images for Håkan's estate inventory. This estate inventory was a lengthy seven pages, and included fascinating information on all of the possessions that Håkan owned, giving me an idea of what his day to day life was like. I also acquired pictures of all of the known farms that Håkan and Maria lived at.

Understating the Times that Sven and Anna Stina’s Grandparents Lived In

Like the generations of Sven Hög and Anna Stina and their parents, the grandparents of Sven and Anna Stina were immersed in the culture of rural, agrarian Sweden. All of them were involved with farming, which a necessity for their very survival. The circumstances of how each of the sets of Sven and Anna Stina’s grandparents met also parallels the two younger generations. The grandparents of Sven and Anna Stina either lived at the same farm or neighboring farms, and were all farmhands or maid when they were married.

There were a few differences in the times which Sven and Anna Stina’s grandparents lived in, however. As the population of Sweden was less in the 18th Century than it was in the 19th Century, it was more common for Swedes to own their own land. For example, Anna Stina’s maternal grandfather, Håkan Persson, owned his own land. Unlike the generation of Sven and Anna Stina, who mostly lived during times of peace in Sweden, their grandparents witnessed three separate wars in their lifetimes: Hats’ Russian War, the Pomeranian War, and Gustaf III’s Russian War. During these times of war, farmers were put under greater pressure to provide resources for Sweden’s soldiers, and henceforth it was harder for them to support their own families. Finally, the first years of Sven and Anna Stina’s grandparents’ lives used the Julian calendar instead of the Gregorian calendar, accounting for a difference of 11 days between the two calendars.

Sweden Switches from the Julian Calendar to the Gregorian Calendar

In 1753, Sweden switched over to the Gregorian calendar. The Gregorian calendar was created in 1582 and named after Pope Gregory XIII. This calendar amounted to a 0.002% adjustment in the length of the year, from 365.25 days (365 days 6 hours) to 365.2425 days (365 days 5 hours 49 minutes 12 seconds), a reduction of 10 minutes 48 seconds per year. The dates between the Gregorian calendar and Julian calendar shift three days per century. When Sweden incorporated the Gregorian calendar in 1753, it leapt forward 11 days in one step, with February 17th being followed by March 1st.

Writing about Anders Isaacsson and Annika Larsdotter

Unlike the other three ancestry profiles in this chapter, I wrote the profile on Anders Isaacsson and Annika Larsdotter from scratch. I gathered all of the information for this file in the fall of 2012 and wrote this file during the summer of 2013. As Anders and Annika were crofters, this file is similar to the file I wrote on Anders Andersson, their son, and his wife, Maria Svensdotter, in the last chapter, who were also crofters that lived in Norra Solberga Parish.

This file contains images of all of the known records associated with Anders and Annika, including:

- The birth and baptism records for Anders and Annika.
- The marriage record for Anders and Annika.
- The birth and baptism records for three of Anders and Annika’s children, Isaac, Maja, and Stina.
- All three household examinations associated with Anders and Annika.
- The marriage records, household examinations, and death and burial records of three of Anders and Annika’s children, Isaac, Maja, and Stina.

This file also includes pictures of all of the known farms that Anders and Annika lived at, most of which were provided by Norra Solberga Parish’s Historical Society.

This file also includes a contextual block on the work periods of farmhands and maids, as well as a contextual block on homeless peasants. It also contains a name block on the name “Anders,” a selection from Wilhelm Moberg (one of the greatest Swedish authors of the 20th Century) about village festivals, the short story “Byköl and Buckhult” by Swedish genealogist Christina Tuvevsson Lindaryd, a story block on the sad and unfortunate life of Anders Jaensson, the widower of Anders and Annika’s daughter Maja, and a relationship block which speculates on what kind of relationships Stina, Anders and Annika’s youngest daughter, had with her husband, Johannes Svensson.

Writing About Sven Nilsson and Anna Månsdotter

The 26-page file I wrote on Sven Nilsson and Anna Månsdotter is nearly nine times larger than the file I wrote about them in in The High Family (1726-2007) book. I started updating this file in July of 2011 (shortly after I visited Sweden), and completed in December of 2014.

This file contains images of most of known records associated with Sven and Anna, including:

- The birth and baptism record for Sven.
- The marriage record of Sven and Anna.
- Six household examinations associated with Sven and Anna.
- The birth and baptism records for four of Sven and Anna’s children: Johan, Sven, Nils, and Beata.
- The death and burial records for Sven and Anna.
- The marriage records, household examinations, and death and burial records of three of Sven and Anna’s children, Johan, Sven, and Beata.

This file contains pictures of almost all of the farms that Sven and Anna lived at, as well as a sketch of what the city of Jönköping looked like in the 18th Century when Sven was a journeyman there.

Early Years (1726-1759)

Sven Nilsson, Sven Hög's maternal grandfather, was born on December 9, 1726, in Djurseryd, Norra Sandsjö Parish. At the time of Sven's birth, Djurseryd was known as "Jurseryd," while Norra Sandsjö was simply known as "Sandsjö." Sven's parents were Nils Svensson and Catrina Svendsdotter.¹ Sven was baptized December 18th at Norra Sandsjö Church. At his baptism, he was carried to the altar by Sven Isrässon and Mrs. Major Lisa Printzenhöfd. The witnesses at the baptism were Johan of Kiall, Måns in Nygård, Niels of Björkö, Skattegård, housewife Karina of Sunarp, maid Sara of Apallholm, maid Karin of Djurseryd, and maid Elisabeth of Skattegård, Björkö Parish.

This file is filled with a number contextual blocks on subjects such as the morgongåfvan - “the morning gift” that was given to the bride by the groom at weddings, life as a smith in 18th Century Sweden, the disease dropsy, and inhysesjon – poor lodgers who were taken care of by others in the parish. The short story that I wrote “Pastoral Life at Gransäng” wrote is also included in this file, as well as selection from Vilhelm Moberg about the rural Swedish community in times of death, a name block on who Sven and Anna’s children were named after, a research block on how to find specific households in Household Examinations, and a memory block which speculates on what some of Anna’s first memories were.

Writing About Johan Svensson and Annika Johansdotter

The 28-page file I wrote on Johan Svensson and Annika Johansdotter is rich in content, giving the reader a clear view of different aspects of their lives in rural 18th Century Sweden. I wrote a lot of this file in October of 2011, and completed it in May of 2015.

This file contains images of all of known records associated with Johan and Annika, including:

- The birth and baptism records for Johan and Annika.
- The marriage record of for Johan and Annika.
- Three household records associated with Johan and Annika.
- The birth and baptism records of seven of their eight children.
- The death and burial records for their four children that died in infancy.
- The death and burial record of Johan and Annika’s son Sven, as well as marriage records, household examinations, and death and burial records of two of their daughters, Annica and Lisken.
- The death and burial records of Johan and Annika.

This file also contains pictures of all of the known farms that Johan and Annika lived at, Tällö, Stora Högaskog, Siggarp, and Knäppet.

It contains contextual blocks on hustruer – married women in Sweden, types of farmland in Sweden, the celebration of birth in Old Sweden, Gustaf III’s Russian War, and oäkta – illegitimate children in Old Sweden. This file also includes the short story “The Death of Sven Johansson” that I wrote, a selection from Vilhelm Moberg on haymaking in Old Sweden, a time period block on the year 1741, a place block on Frinnaryd Parish, a memory block which speculates on what some of Annika Johansdotter’s first memories were, some objects blocks on the items that Johan Svensson owned, and a story block about the time that King Gustaf III rode through Marbäck Parish in in 1773.

- The (probable) birth and baptism record of Maria.
- The marriage record of Håkan and Maria.

- Four household examination records associated with Håkan and Maria.
- The death and burial record of Johannes, their eldest son, as well as most of the marriage records, household examinations, and death and burial records associated with their other children.
- The death and burial records for Håkan and Maria.

This file includes pictures of all of the known farms that Håkan and Maria lived at, including Öberga, Sjötorp, Sännige, Vallstorp, Älmås, and Önnarp.

Early Years (1728-1758)

Håkan Persson, Anna Stina Johansdotter's maternal grandfather, was born around 1728. Although household records indicate that he was born in Lommaryd Parish¹, no record of him can be found in the births of Lommaryd for that year.² Little is known of his early life and there has been no information found documenting when his specific birth date was or whom his parents were. The only thing that is known about his parents is that his father's name was Feg. Most likely, he worked as a farmhand in his younger years.

It also includes the short story “The Death of Johannes Håkanson” by Rhonda Serafini, a section from Vilhelm Moberg about communal life in rural Old Sweden, a place block on Trehörna Parish, several objects blocks about many of the items that Håkan Persson owned, and a research block on crossed out names in Household Examinations.

Vittaryd – Where Anders Isaacsson was born in 1742

Almost nothing is known of Anders's childhood. It's unknown how many siblings Anders had, although he may have had a sister named Britta. For the first two years of Anders's life, his father, Isac Wittling, was a soldier for the Jönköping Regiment. For these two years, Ander's family lived at Soldier's Cottage No. 98 at Vittaryd. In 1744, Isac Wittling developed an ulcer in his leg, and he was subsequently discharged from the military.³

After his father was discharged from the military, Ander's family had to leave Soldier's Cottage No. 98 at Vittaryd so that an active soldier could live there. Subsequently, Anders's family may have moved to another village in Lommaryd Parish, or they may have moved to another parish.

Anders's family may have lived in the parishes of Lommaryd, Bälaryd, Flisby, and Norra Solberga throughout the 1750s and 1760s. By 1770, Anders was a farmhand at Stumperyd, a farm in northwest Norra Solberga Parish. At that time, Stumperyd was owned by Arvid Gustaf Ribbing (1709-1779). Ribbing lived at Stumperyd with his wife, Helena Sabelfelt (1721-1775), and seven children: Catharina, Johanna, Per, Fredrick, Anna, Hedvig, and Carl.

Legohjon – Work Periods of Farmhands and Maids

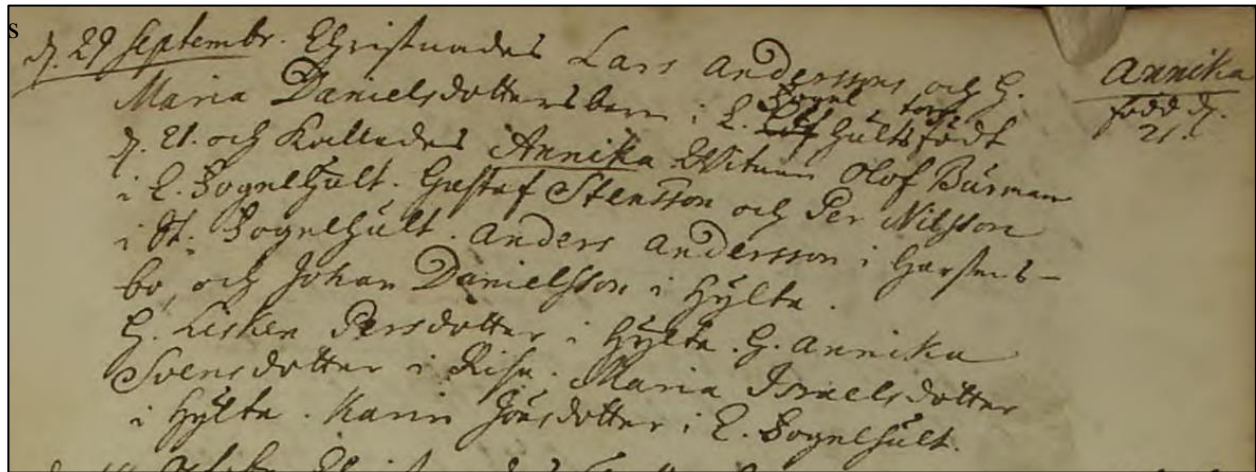

When farmhands (drängs) and maids (piga) were hired to work on a farm, they were usually contracted to work for a year. The period of their work contract was called legohjon. At the end of the legohjon, hired work could be rehired, or move on to another farm to work. Farmhands and maids had seven days to report to their new employers. This week was known as flyttedag, or “free week.” It gave the workers a week to visit friends and family, as well as travel to their new farm of employment.

Lilla Fåglehult – Where Annika Larsdotter was born in 1746

Annika Larsdotter, the paternal grandmother of Sven Hög, was born on September 21, 1744 in Lilla Fåglehult, a farm in eastern Norra Solberga Parish. Her parents were Lars Andersson and Maria Danielsdotter. Annika was baptized on September 29th at Old Norra Solberga Church. The witnesses at her baptism were Olof Burman in Lilla Fåglehult, Gustaf Stensson and Per Nilsson in Stora Fågelhult, Anders Andersson in Harstensbo, Johan Danielsson in Hylta, Lisken Persdotter in Hylta, Annika Svensdotter in Risa, Maria Israelsdotter in Hylta, and Karin Jönsdotter in Lilla Fågelhult.⁴ Annika was probably baptized by Anders Rosinius.

Gunnarstorp – Where Annika may have been a maid in 1770

This old sketch shows how Old Norra Solberga Church looked when Anders Isaacson and Annika Larsdotter attended services there.

It's unknown how Anders and Annika met. The farm of Glömminge is just east of Stumperyd, however, so it's probable that they lived close to one another. The two probably courted in the late 1760s. On May 27, 1770, Anders Isaacsson and Annika Larsdotter were married. Annika was given away by her father, Lars Andersson.⁵ Anders and Annika were probably married by Magnus Carlström, and may have been married at his vicarage. the chaplain of Norra Solberga at that time. When they were married, Anders was 27 and Annika was 25.

The witnesses at Isaac's baptism were Samuel Jaensson in Lid, Pehr Andersson in Glädjen, Britta Isaacsdotter in Lid, and maid Maja Larsdotter in Grimsberg.⁶ It's likely that Britta Isaacsdotter was Anders's sister and that Maja Larsdotter was Annika Larsdotter's sister.

Life at Buckhult (1771-1806)

Sometime in the early 1770's, Anders and Annika's family moved to Buckhult, the farm south of Stumperyd, where Anders had been a farmhand. Here, their family lived at Svenstorp, a soldier's cottage in the southern part of the farm. Anders Isaacsson lived as a crofter and worked in the fields of Buckhult for a living. At this time, two farmers, Jonas and Daniel, owned Buckhult and lived there with their families. Another crofter named Jaen Månsson lived at a croft named Bygget at Buckhult with his wife Britta, and their three children: Rebecca, Maja, and Lars. Jaen and Britta were friends with Anders and Annika and would eventually be the godparents of their two daughters.

In 1774, Annika gave birth to their second eldest child, Anders Andersson.⁷ Anders' baptism wasn't recorded, so it's unknown when exactly he was born and baptized. On December 11, 1775, Maja, Anders and Annika's eldest daughter, was born. She was baptized on December 17th at Old Norra Solberga Church. The witnesses at Maja's baptism were Jaen Månsson, Sven Ingemarsson, and maid Rebecka Jaensdotter of Bygget, and Ingrid Håkansdotter of Mählen.⁸

Svenstorp – Where Anders and Annika’s family lived in the 1770s and 1780s

As a crofter, Anders Isaacsson worked in the fields for most of the day, doing menial tasks such as hoeing soil, removing rocks, gathering firewood, cutting down trees with an axe for lumber, and gathering bundles of hay together and carrying them to the farmhouse. Meanwhile, Annika Larsdotter kept busy raising their small children and performing various chores around the croft.

On January 23, 1783, Stina, Anders and Annika’s youngest daughter, was born. She was baptized on January 28th at Old Norra Solberga Church. The witnesses at Stina’s baptism were Soldier Jonas Löfgren, Jaen Månsson, housewife Brita Andersdotter from Bygget, and maid Lena Ericsson of Stumperyd.⁹

Although the lives of Anders and Annika were filled with backbreaking work and mundane chores, they also had some amusement from time to time, celebrating various village festivals with their neighbours. In addition to major holiday traditions such as Midsummer's Day and St. Lucia's Day, village festivals were among the highlights of Swedish peasants' lives.

The Village Work Feasts and Festivals

“Crayfishing” by Carl Larsson

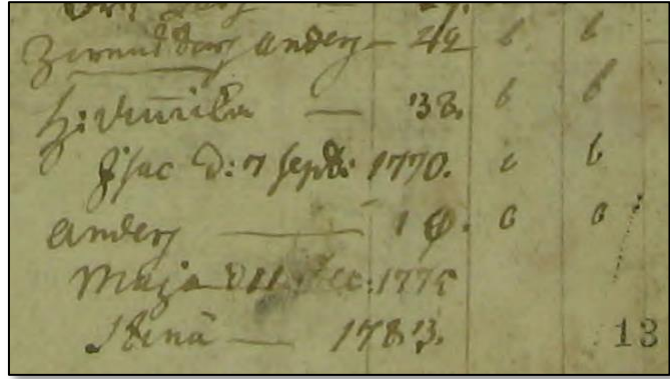

“The villagers work feasts had many names. That the word for ale ‘öl’ often appears in these names witnesses to the crucial position of this most important of medieval beverages. There were ‘slätteröl’, haymaking feast, ‘taklagsöl’, the feast when the roof was completed on a new house, the ‘byköl’, when the laundry had been done and many others. To these must be added such family traditions as the ‘barnsöl’ the birth and christening of a child, and ‘gravöl’ the funeral feast.

Certainly, most of the village’s teamwork was therefore carried out to an accompaniment of food and drink. There was no stinginess toward the participants. Amply regaled, they found relief from the plainness of their everyday fare.

The major feasts were held at the conclusion of some seasonal work. The hay-feast, marking the conclusion of haymaking at the end of July, was one of the greatest events of the peasant year.”

Moberg, Vilhelm. History of the Swedish People p. 193

As Anders and Annika entered into their forties in the 1780s, their sons Isaac and Anders became old enough to help their father in the fields. Their eldest daughter, Maja, probably helped Annika raise Stina, their youngest daughter. Anders and Annika's family attended Norra Solberga Church, where all four of their children were confirmed.

Byköl in Buckhult *

Twice a year - in the spring and autumn - it was laundry time in Buckhult. The laundry heap was huge; the farm was rich and owns a lot of linen. The laundry work was always done at night, so as not to encroach on the bright hours of work. The day before, the laundry was put in water to soak, and after milking the cows in the evening the maids go off to the laundry house. Above the open fire, there was a large cauldron with lye, made of birch ashes. The laundry was to be scooped with lye until four o'clock in the morning. Even the crofters' wives would come; such as Annika Larsdotter and Britta from Bygget. Four women worked together at the time, scooping the laundry with lye that stings their eyes. After half an hour, four other women took over and this is how it continued all night long.

The local farmhands would show up - to help with the work and be part of the feast that was held at laundry time. This activity was called "byköl" (byk=laundry, öl=beer) - and öl was certainly a big part of this feast. The laundry house in Buckhult was not very big and therefore the feast was held in the barn nearby. There were games and entertainment, fiddlers are played and people are danced. The farmer's wife Ingrid arrived with coffee after putting her three children to bed, and the farmer Jonas himself served schnapps and beer. Although laundry was hard work, this was an event full of joy.

On October 28, 1787, Maria Danielsdotter, Annika's mother, died.¹⁰ Sometime in the 1780s, a croft called Hallebo was constructed at northwest Buckhult. The first tenants of Hallebo were Soldier Gabriel Bengtsson-Fogel and his wife Stina Andersdotter. In March of 1788, there was a fire at Hallebo, which killed the 2½ year old son of Gabriel and Stina.¹¹ Shortly after this, the two left Hallebo and Anders and Annika's family moved into that cottage.

Hallebo – Where Anders and Annika’s family lived from 1790 to 1806

When Anders and Annika’s moved to Hallebo around 1790, the two were middle-aged, and their three eldest children were young adults. Hallebo was just south of the farm Stumperyd. Arvid Gustaf, the owner of Stumperyd who Anders used to work for, had died the year before in 1789, and his son, Per (1750-1829) took over the farm. On March 8, 1792, Lars Andersson, Annika’s father, died from a stroke.¹²

Annika Larsdotter only survived her father for a little over a year. Sometime in the early 1790s, she contracted tuberculosis. It must have been painful for Anders and their children to watch helplessly as her coughing grew worse and her condition deteriorated. On April 14, 1793, Annika passed away. She was buried at the cemetery of Old Norra Solberga Church on April 20th.¹³

Annika’s death must have been devastating on Anders Isaacsson and his four children. Stina, his youngest daughter, was only ten when her mother died. Anders lived at Hallebo for 13 more years. Sometime in the mid-1790s, Anders Andersson, his second eldest son, left Hallebo to be a farmhand at Slåthult, a farm in central Norra Solberga. On December 12, 1797, Anders Andersson, was married to Maria Svendsdotter, a maid at Slåthult. On July 4, 1798, Anders Isaacsson became a grandfather when Anna Andersdotter, Anders and Maria’s eldest child, was born.

December 24, 1800) and Anders (b. September 3, 1804), were both born in Flisby.

Within a couple of months after Anders's birth, Maja Stina, Jaen and Maja's daughter, died of tuberculosis on April 14, 1807.²⁰

Sometime in 1808, Jaen Andersson and Maja Andersdotter moved to the farm Hamnaryd, where they lived at a croft called Mittför.²¹ Anders, their second son, died of dysentery on October 19, 1808.²² Only a few weeks after Anders's death, Johan, their only surviving child at the time, died of abscesses on November 5, 1808.²³ On February 8, 1809, Maja gave birth to Ingrid Stina, making her and Jaen parents again after the loss of their three eldest children. Sometime in 1809 or 1810, Jaen and Maja's family moved to the farm Glömminge, where they lived at a croft called Måssen.²⁴ Here, Maja gave birth to a son named Anders Johan on December 5, 1810.²⁵

The Sad and Tragic Life of Anders Jaensson

Tragedy continued to follow Anders Jaensson after the death of Maja Andersdotter. Less than nine months after Maja's death, Anders was married to Stina Pehrsson (b. 1764) on January 18, 1814.¹ Stina was 18 years old than Anders. Sometime during the summer of 1814, Ingrid Stina, Anders's daughter, contracted measles and died of the disease on July 1st.² Near the end of 1816, Anders's two surviving children, Anders Johan and Anna Stina, contracted scarlet fever. Anders Johan died on October 19, 1816, while Anna Stina, Anders and Maja's last surviving child, died less than two months later on December 13th.³ Stina Pehrsson, Anders's second wife, died on April 9, 1828.⁴

On Oct 30, 1828, Anders married his third wife, Stina Johnsdotter (b. 1795).⁵ Anders and Stina had 5 children together: Johannes (b. 1830), Anna Sofia (b. 1832), Anders Johan (b. 1833), Gustaf (b. 1836), and Katrina Helen (b. 1839). In 1834, Anders and Stina's family moved to the farm Påskarp in northern Norra Solberga.⁶ Eight years later, Ander's family moved to Gummarp.⁷ In 1852, Ander's family moved to Kongseryd in west Norra Solberga. Here, Anders was recorded as being poor while his wife was listed as suffering from a mental illness.⁸ Stina Johnsdotter, Anders's third wife, died on October 10, 1862.⁹ Anders Jaensson died at the age of 81 at Korset, a croft at Kongseryd, on January 16, 1864.¹⁰

The Fate of Stina Andersdotter

Stina Andersdotter, Anders and Annika's eldest daughter, was only ten years old when her mother died in 1793. She remained at Hallebo until she was 22. In 1805, Stina moved to Grimsberg, where she worked as a maid.²⁹ Stina spent her adult life working as a maid at various farms in Norra Solberga, Björkö, and Flisby Parishes. On October 13, 1822, while living at Gullarp in Flisby Parish, Stina gave birth to an illegitimate daughter named Anna Stina, who was baptized the same day.³⁰ The identity of Anna Stina's biological father is unknown.

Household Examination record of Johannes Svensson and Stina Andersdotter’s family at Dunder, Norra Solberga - 1842

According to the Norra Solberga’s Household Examination records, Johannes Svensson and Stina Andersdotter were homeless for much of the 1840s and 1850s. By 1843, the two were registered as “på socken” – peasants who were vagrants and didn’t have a home.³⁴ In Norra Solberga Household Examinations AI:8 (1846-1850), Johannes Svensson is still registered as “på socken,” but Stina’s name cannot be found.³⁵ It’s unknown where Stina was at this time, and why she wasn’t recorded with her husband.

In the next volume, Norra Solberga Household Examinations AI:9 (1851-1858), Stina is recorded as living at Dunder again. A note states that Stina came back to Dunder in 1846 from Kjärr, a farm in central Norra Solberga, and that she was poor.³⁶ In this volume, Johannes Svensson is still registered as “på socken.”³⁷

På Socken – Homeless Peasants in 19th Century Sweden

The term “på socken” means that although a person was registered within a specific parish, he or she didn’t live at any specific place within that parish. As Sweden’s population exploded during in the 19th Century, the amount of poor and homeless peasants dramatically increased, so there wasn’t enough room among a parish’s farms and poor houses for every peasant. Peasants who were “på socken” wandered the countryside, living off of the mercy of various farmers for food and temporary lodging.

What Kind of Marriage Did Johannes and Stina Have?

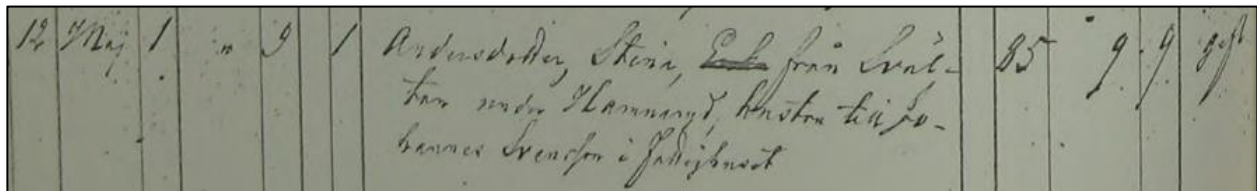

The marriage of Johannes Svensson and Stina Andersdotter certainly appears unusual. While it wasn't uncommon for a man in Sweden to marry a woman 20 years younger than him, it's rare to see a marriage where the wife is 21 years older than her husband. It's unlikely that Johannes Svensson was the biological father of Anna Stina, since he didn't marry Stina until six years after Anna Stina was born. It's also unusual that Johannes and Stina didn't live together for most of the last twenty years of their marriage. Since divorce was very uncommon at the time, the two might have been separated. While it's impossible to know for certain what their marriage was like, it certainly draws a lot of speculation.

In 1860, Stina Andersdotter moved to Svältan, a croft at Hamnaryd. Here, Stina lived the remainder of her days. By this time, Johannes Svensson was living in Norra Solberga's poorhouse.³⁸

Early Years (1726-1759)

Sven Nilsson, Sven Hög's maternal grandfather, was born on December 9, 1726, in Djurseryd, Norra Sandsjö Parish. At the time of Sven's birth, Djurseryd was known as "Jurseryd," while Norra Sandsjö was simply known as "Sandsjö." Sven's parents were Nils Svensson and Catrina Svensdotter. Sven was baptised December 18th at Norra Sandsjö Church. At his baptism, he was carried to the altar by Sven Isrälsson and Mrs. Major Lisa Printzsenskiöld. The witnesses at the baptism were Johan of Kiallen, Måns in Nygård, Niels of Björkö Skattegård, housewife Karina of Sunarp, maid Sara of Apallholm, maid Karin of Djurseryd, and maid Elisabeth of Skattegård, Björkö Parish.⁴²

“Sven” – A Prominent Name in Sven Nilsson’s Family

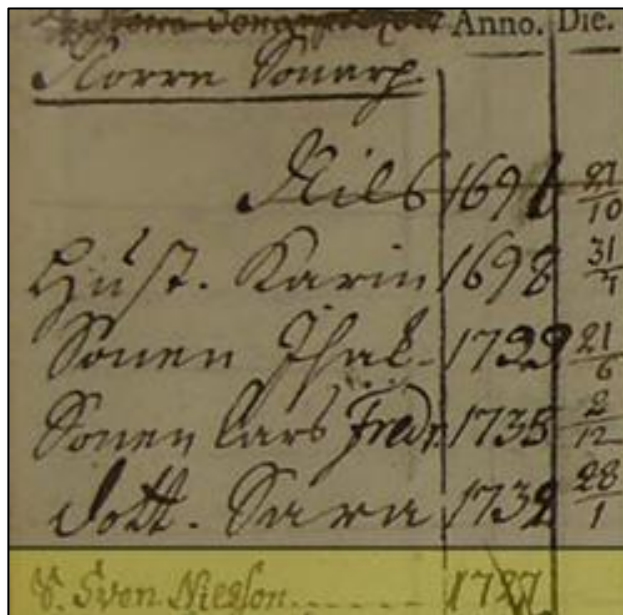

Although the name Sven was very common in Sweden in the 18th Century, it was especially frequent in Sven Nilsson’s family.

- Both of Sven Nilsson’s grandfathers, Sven Ingelsson and Sven Isaacksson, were named Sven.
- Sven’s second eldest child was named Sven Svensson.
- All four of Sven’s children had sons named Sven.
 - Jonas, Sven’s eldest child, had a son named Sven Jonasson (b. 1794).
 - The eldest child of Sven Svensson, Sven Nilsson’s second son, was also named Sven Svensson (b. 1802).
 - Maria, Sven’s eldest daughter, was the mother of Sven Andersson Hög.
 - The eldest son of Beata, Sven Nilsson’s youngest daughter, was named Sven Jönsson (b. 1805).

Sven’s father, Nils, was a rusthåller, or farmer responsible for providing for a cavalry rider. Sven was the third eldest of six children. He had three sisters, Margaret, Elisabeth, and Sara, and two brothers, Isak and Lars Fredrick. Shortly after he was born, Sven’s family moved to Sälleryd, a farm in Björko Parish, where they lived for a few years.⁴³ By 1735, they had moved to Norra Sonarp⁴⁴, a farm in northern Björko, where Sven’s parents, Nils and Karin, had grown up.

Norra Sonarp – Where Sven Nilsson grew up

Household Examination showing Sven Nilsson at Norra Sonarp, Björkö Parish: 1753-1804

Several of Sven’s extended relatives also lived at Norra Sonarp. Sven Svensson, Sven’s paternal uncle, lived at Norra Sonarp with his wife, Annika, and children. Malin Svendsdotter, Sven’s paternal aunt, also lived at the farm with her husband, Håkan, and children. Knut Svensson, Sven’s maternal uncle, lived at Norra Sonarp with his wife, Maria, and children. Sara Knutsdotter, Sven’s maternal grandmother, lived at Norra Sonarp for the first three years of Sven’s life until her death. Sven’s paternal grandparents, Sven Ingelsson and Kirstin Larsdotter, also lived at Norra Sonarp. Sven Ingelsson lived to the old age of 102 and died in 1753, when Sven Nilsson was 26 years old, while Kirstin Larsdotter died in 1761.

When he was growing up, Sven’s family attended Björkö Church. Once he was old enough, Sven started helping his father, Nils, work in the fields at Norra Sonarp. By the time that he was in his twenties, Sven worked as a farmhand at Norra Sonarp. Around this time, Sven probably became the apprentice of a master brick-layer. Sven most likely trained for a few years under this person until he was qualified to become a journeyman.

In 1755, Sven left Norra Sonarp and travelled to the city of Jönköping, where he lived for four years.⁴⁵ Jönköping was the largest city in Sven's county and was a couple days journey from Norra Sonarp. While he was in Jönköping, it's very likely that Sven was a journeyman brick-layer.⁴⁶ As a journeyman, Sven had to travel around the place, learning as much as he could. Finally, after around six years or so of training, Sven was certified as a master-bricklayer himself.

Gissarp - Anna Månsdotter's childhood home

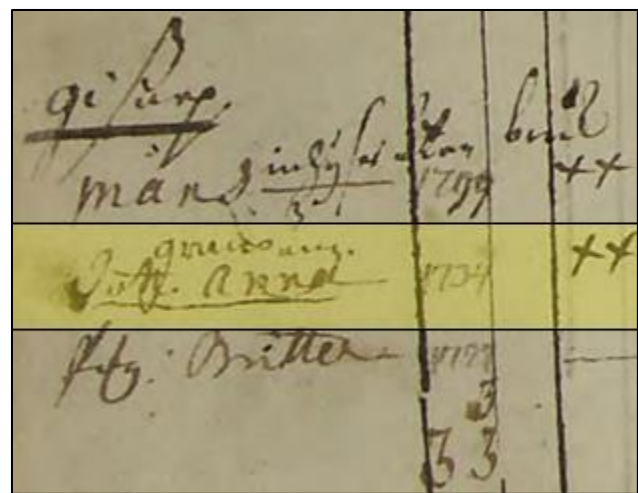

Some of Anna's childhood memories may have included...

- The death of her uncle, Daniel Olofsson (Anna was 5).
- The death of her uncle, Jon Olofsson (Anna was 7).
- The death of her uncle, Sven Olofsson (Anna was 12).
- The Reign of Fredrik I. (1720-1751). Anna was 17 years old when Fredrick died.

Sometime in 1734⁴⁷, Anna Månsdotter, Sven Hög's maternal grandmother, was born at the farm of Gissarp in Nässjö Parish. Her parents were Måns Olofsson and Maria Engdahl. Måns, Anna's father, was a farmer who owned a third of Gissarp and was responsible for providing for a cavalry rider and his horse. Anna had at least one an older brother, Olof, and at least one older sister, Kerstin. Two of Anna's uncles, Jon and Daniel Olofsson, also owned Gissarp and lived there with their families. Although both died when Anna was a young girl, Anna may have been close to her aunts, Anna Bengstdotter (Jon Olofsson's wife) and Sara Persdotter (Daniel Olofsson's wife). Several of Anna's cousins also lived at Gissarp.

Growing up, Anna attended Old Nässjö Church with her family, where Sven Fovelin served as the vicar. Fovelin likely an influential person to Anna when she was growing up, and he probably taught her how to read.

Anna's family frequently visited the village of Gransång in Barkeryd Parish, where her maternal grandmother, Beata Urbansdotter, lived, as did Bengt Bengtsson Engdahl, Anna's uncle. Around 1750, Maria, Anna's mother, died.⁴⁸ Anna would have been just a young teenager when Maria died, so her passing must have been hard on her. In 1754, one of Anna's cousins, Jonas Jonsson, was murdered at Gissarp. In the late 1750s, Anna left Gissarp and moved to Gransång where she lived as a maid.

Map showing Gissarp and Norra Sonarp

Since the farms of Gissarp and Norra Sonarp are only a short distance from one another, it's probable that Sven Nilsson and Anna Månsdotter knew each other from a very young age. Both of their fathers, Nils and Måns, were rusthållers and probably knew each other quite well. Sven and Anna probably became engaged in 1758. On June 6, 1759, Sven Nilsson and Anna Månsdotter were married. They may have been married at Björkö Church or at the vicarage in Björkö Parish.⁴⁹

Married in the year 1759.

June 6th Married farmhand Sven Nilsson in Norra Sonarp with maid Annica Månsdotter in Gransäng, Barkeryd Parish. A Morning gift of 30 lod was promised.

Morgongåfvan - "The Morning Gift"

The morgongåfvan, or "morning gift", was a payment or gift given from the groom to the bride, which symbolized the promise of future inheritance more than a physical gift. Since it was specified by law, it was a legally binding promise. Although size of the morgongåfvan wasn't specified by law, the morgongåfvan was legally required. Morgongåfvan were often given in small units of silver. 1 lod (the unit of measurement in Sweden at this time) was 13.7 grams in today's measurements. The groom didn't have to actually own the amount agreed to in the morgongåfvan. Rather, it was determined upon what he expected to inherit. The morgongåfvan could be seen as a symbolic return payment for the dowry.

Life at Gransäng (1759-1787)

After Sven and Anna were married, Sven moved Gransäng to live with Anna.⁵⁰ There were two farms at Gransäng, Kronogården and Skattegården, each of which had four households. Sven and Anna's family lived at Skattegården, as did the family of Sergeant Major Bengt Engdahl, Anna's uncle, and two other farmers. The four farmers that owned Skattegården paid taxes to both the Crown and Church.

Gransäng, Barkeryd – The farm where Sven Nilsson and Anna Månsdotter's family lived

Sergeant Major Bengt Bengtsson Engdahl (b. 1698) resided at Skattegården with his wife, Lena Stina Mellberg (b. 1715), and son, Otto Lorentz (b. 1751). Otto, Anna's cousin, was also very close to Sven and Anna's family.

Bengt Bengtsson Engdahl – Anna Månsdotter's Favorite Uncle

Since the rest of Anna Månsdotter's uncles passed away when she was a girl, Bengt Bengtsson Engdahl, her maternal uncle, was most likely her favourite uncle. Growing up, it's almost certain that Anna frequently visited Gransäng to see Beata, her maternal grandmother, and Bengt. Bengt was a Sergeant Major in the Jönköping Regiment, and had numerous stories to tell about his adventures in the military. Engdahl likely told his niece all about his experiences in the Great Northern War, such as the Siege of Fredrikshald in Norway, the battle where King Karl XII was killed.

The other families who lived at Skattegården were also close to Sven and Anna's family, and were likewise chosen to be the godparents of their children. All four of these families lived close together at Skattegården. They all lived in small houses, which only had one major room, an entryway, and kitchen. There was a small mill by the Fredriksdalsån River which was used by the farmers of Skattegården. Several maids and farmhands also lived at Gransäng, and became close friends of Sven and Anna. In particular, there were a few maids, Lisa, Sara, Karin, and Helena, who became good friends of Anna and served as witnesses at their children's baptisms.

Although Sven Nilsson was a master-bricklayer, there probably wasn't that much work for him in that field in Gransäng. Thus, he had to pursue other crafts to support his family, such as being a smith.

Blacksmith's shed at Skansen, Stockholm

At Gransäng, Sven farmed, as well as practiced his craft as a smith. His skills likely were of assistance to others at Gransäng. Otto Lorenz Engdahl, Sven's neighbour, was a locksmith.⁵¹ Sven and Otto probably worked together. In addition to making things for the farmers in the area, the two probably also made materials for the rifle factory in Huskvarna⁵², a city just east of the city of Jönköping.

Smedhandverkets - Life as a Smith in Rural 18th Century Sweden

In the 18th Century trade professions (such as blacksmiths, shoemakers, and tailors) were only allowed in the cities of Sweden. Despite this, many farmers in the countryside practiced a craft. In addition to using his craft to supply his own family, a farmer who practiced a craft could also trade in the country. Rural craftsmen were called "socken" craftsmen, meaning that their trade was limited to their parish. Socken craftsmen were appointed by the sockenstämman, or parish council. In 1846, an act was passed allowing all types of craftsmen to practice their craft in the countryside.

A smedhandverket, or smith, learned his craft as an apprentice alongside an experienced smith. Smiths always had apprentices work alongside them, and forged all types of metalwork, such as horseshoes, wagon equipment, and various tools.

Most smiths kept large sheds outside their homes where they practiced their profession. A smith's shed had to be kept rather dark so that the blacksmith could see the how hot the metal he was working with was. Smiths needed to use larger tools than many other professions. Although blacksmiths kept their own materials, they often lived closer to the towns so they could always replenish their supplies. Smiths typically had a higher social standing than other socken craftsmen.

Sven and Anna’s first child, Jonas, was born on August 24, 1760. Jonas was baptized the following day. Jonas was probably named after Anna’s cousin who was murdered six years earlier. The witnesses at the baptism were Maria Engdal, Sergeant Major Bengt Engdal, housewife Stina, Jacob, maid Lisa, handyman Nils, and maid Sara, all from Gransäng.⁵³ The birth of Sven and Anna’s first child was probably commemorated with a good amount of celebration in Gransäng.

It's possible that the Sara from this record is the same Sara who was listed as a maid among the witnesses of Jonas's baptism. The Names of Sven and Anna's Children

In old times, it was common for Swedes to name their children after relatives. All of Sven Nilsson and Anna Månsdotter's children were likely named after relatives of theirs:

- Jonas Svensson was likely named after Jonas Jonsson, a paternal cousin of Anna's, who was murdered in 1754.
- Sven Svensson was probably named after Sven Nilsson, or Sven Nilsson's two grandfathers, Sven Inglesson and Sven Isakson.
- Nils Svensson was probably named after Sven Nilsson's father, Nils Svensson.
- Maria Svensdotter was likely named after her Anna's mother, Maria Engdahl.
- Beata Svensdotter was likely named after Anna's maternal grandmother, Beata Urbansdotter.

During the 1770s, the decade in which Sweden underwent a massive drought, two daughters were born to Sven and Anna. On February 5th, 1771, Anna gave birth to Maria Svensdotter, Sven Hög's mother.⁵⁷

Anna's father, Måns, died on September 8, 1775.⁵⁸ Two months later, Sven and Anna's youngest child, Beata, was born on November 8, 1775.⁵⁹ Beata was baptized on November 12th. Witnesses present at her baptism were their neighbors Pehr Håkansson, Bengt Nilsson, Otto Engdal and his wife Ingrid, maid Lotta Engdal, and maid Helena, as well as maid Kerstin of Esperyd.

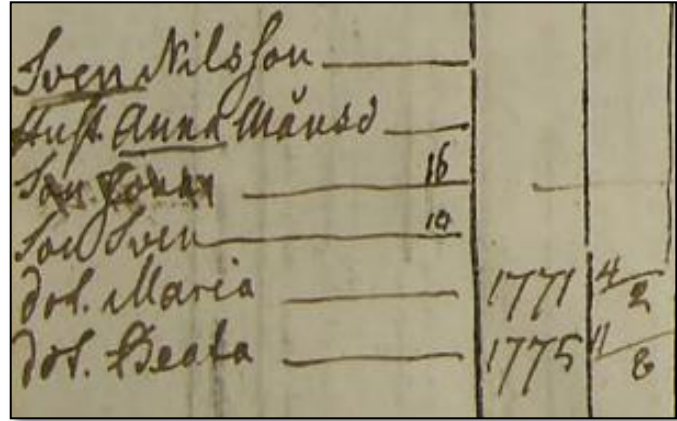

Maria and Beata were probably good friends with their neighbour Pehr Håkansson's daughters, Britta and Lena, as the two were mentioned as witnesses at Maria's wedding in 1797. By this point, Sven and Anna were middle-aged and their eldest son, Jonas was a teenager.

During the 1770s, Jonas and Sven, Sven and Anna’s sons, helped their father with chores around Gransäng. In addition to helping Sven run the farm, the two probably learned various crafts from him. In 1776, Jonas moved out of the house at the age of 16.⁶⁰ He later returned to live with his family in 1789.

Household Examination of Sven Nilsson and Anna Månsdotter’s family at Gransäng, Barkeryd Parish 1771-1782

Finding Households in Household Examinations

At the beginning of every household examination is an index which lists all of the different households in the parish. All of the farms and cottages in the parish are listed in alphabetical order, along with the page number the examination records for that particular household can be found. Often, a household can be listed several times in a single volume throughout several different pages, with each listing covering a different period of years. Occasionally, particularly in the mid-19th- Century, a volume may actually be split into two different books, so it is important to check the index of both books if you can’t find the household you’re looking for.

How Barkeryd Church looked when Sven Nilsson and Anna Månsdotter’s family attended there

Sven and Anna’s family attended church at Old Barkeryd Church. Sven Fovelin, the pastor of Anna’s youth, also served as the vicar of Barkeryd. All five of Sven and Anna’s children were baptized by Sven Fovelin. On July 16, 1777, Sven Fovelin passed away. His son, Johan, succeeded him as pastor. Johan would go on to perform several funerals, marriages, and baptisms for Sven and Anna’s family.

Throughout the years, different families lived at Gransäng. In the early 1770s, a man named Peter Arvidsson lived at one of the houses at Skattegården with his wife, Ingrid Larsdotter, and six children: Brita, Arvid, Lars, Kersin, Israël, and Pehr. A man named Hans lived at another house at Skattegården with his wife, Elin, and five children: Ingrid, Bengt, Catrina, Margreta, and Nils.

By the late 1770s, both Petter Arvidsson and Hans's families had left Gransäng. In 1774, a man named Nils Håkansson moved to Skattegården with his wife, Stina, Lisken, and Sara. A man named Bengt Nilsson also lived at Skattegården during this time with his wife, Catrina Carlsdotter, and two children, Margreta and Nils. On July 28, 1782, Master Sergeant Bengt Engdal passed away.⁶¹ Although the inhabitants of Gransäng were probably saddened by his death, he had lived a long life of 84 years. After his death, Otto, Bengt's son, took over the household. By this time, Otto was married to a woman named Ingierd and had a son named Jonas. Sven Nilsson's mother, Catharina Svensdotter, died on October 17th, 1782.⁶²

Gransäng was surrounded by forests that were teeming with wildlife. Although there were several acres of meadow at Gransäng, most of the soil was poor and sandy. 34 different breeds of animals were raised at Gransäng. The Esperyd River ran through Gransäng, along which there was a flour mill. The inhabitants of Gransäng sometimes fished in this river.⁶³

Pastoral Life at Gransäng - 1785 *

The pastoral village of Gransäng was teeming with life on a sunny, spring day in 1785 as villagers and animals alike went about their busy day. Just before sunrise, a soft chorus of joyful chirps arose from cuckoos, sparrows, and song-thrushes, heralding the start of a new day. As the early morning sun peaked out from the horizon, a crow from a rooster loudly pierced the sky, notifying the farm folk that it was time for them to get up and start their morning chores.

Within an hour, all of the inhabitants of both of Gransäng's farms, Kronogård and Skättegård, were wide awake and working in the fields. Gransäng's farmers, such as Sven Nilsson, Bengt Nilsson, and Otto Engdahl, spent the long day ploughing the sandy fields in preparation to plant crops for the season. The women of the village, such as Anna Månsdotter, Catrina Carlsdotter, and Kerstin Johansdotter, also went about their chores, such as milking cows and feeding all of the livestock. The young children of Gransäng spent most of their day assisting their parents with their work, but were sometimes allowed to play by the Esperyd River. Meanwhile, the spruce and birch filled forests that surrounded Gransäng were likewise frolicking with activity, as deer, foxes, and rabbits stirred throughout the woods.

In the spring of 1787, Anna became ill with a disease called dropsy. Sven and their children would have watched with concern as parts of Anna's body became more and more swollen. On May 28, 1787, Anna died of the disease. She was buried on June 3rd in the cemetery of Barkeryd Church.⁶⁴ Anna's death was most likely not only grieved by her family, but by all of her friends and neighbors at Gransäng.

Dropsy

Today, dropsy is known as edema, a disease which is caused by an abnormal accumulation beneath the skin. Swelling is particularly common among the legs and feet. People with dropsy could also have swollen eyes when they woke up. If the fluid is not drained, it can build up and cause congestive heart failure or cripple other vital organs.

The Rural Community in Times of Death

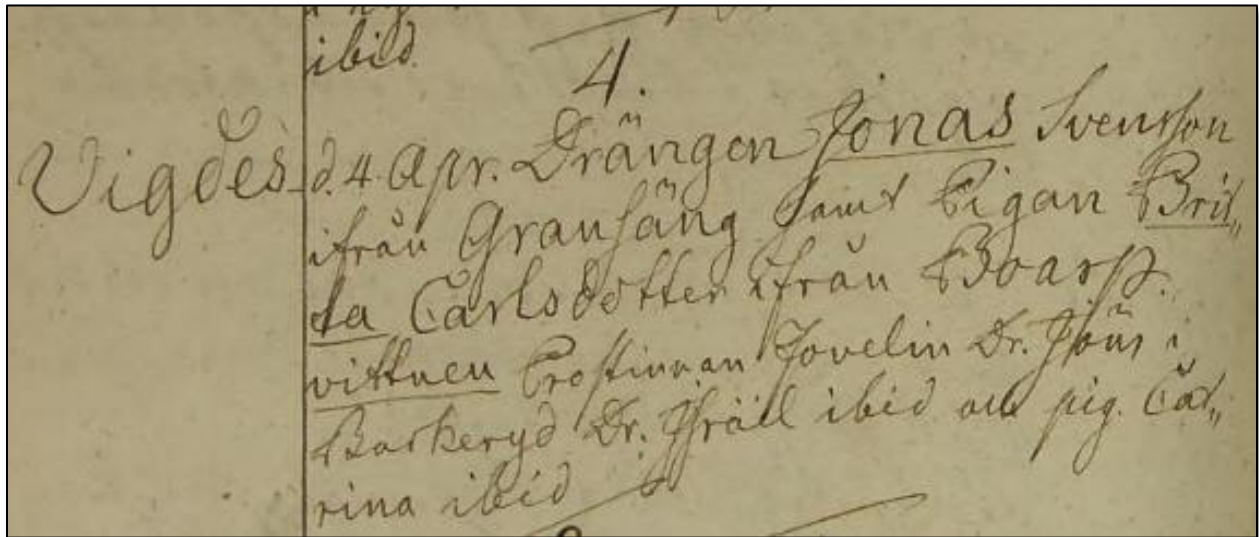

“The village community followed its members with a helping hand, literally from cradle to grave. When someone died, the coffin-bearers assumed their function. The road to the parish churchyard, though many miles long, might be impassable to horse and cart. In that event the coffin had to be carried there by the men of the village, two six man teams taking over from one another at regular intervals. The byalag was always at work. Its care for individuals began at birth and only ended with death.”

Sven survived his wife by eight years. As a widower, it would appear that these last years of his life were very sad and difficult ones. Sven was now in his early sixties, and too old to continue to wield the blacksmith tools or plough the fields. Without Anna around to help around the croft, Sven could thus no longer provide for himself or his family. By 1789, Sven’s youngest children, Sven, Maria, and Beata could no longer be supported by their father, and had to find work outside of Gransäng.

Dyefall

Sven, Sven Nilsson’s second eldest son, left Gransäng to become a farmhand at Gissarp in 1789. Sven’s eldest daughter, Maria, left to become maid at Dyefall, a farm in Nässjö Parish the same year.⁷⁷ The following year, Beata, Sven’s youngest daughter, found employment at Dyefall at the young age of 14.⁷⁸ Her term of employment also lasted a year, and she returned to Gransäng to live with her family in 1791.

Sven spent the last 6 years of his life as a lodger.⁷⁹ A lodger, or cottager, was one who lived at the household of another free of payment. Jonas and his wife Brita helped provide for Sven in his final years as he lived with them. On January 27th, 1794, Sven became a grandfather when Jonas and Brita became parents to a baby boy named Sven (who was likely named after his grandfather). Sven was the only grandchild Sven Nilsson lived to see.

Household Examination showing Sven Nilsson at Gransäng, Barkeryd Parish: 1790

Sometime in the early 1790s, Sven Nilsson contracted tuberculosis. In 1795, his condition deteriorated. During this time, Sven was probably looked after by his daughter-in-law, Britta, who was also busy caring for her new-born son. Sven died from the disease on July 14th, 1795 at the age of 68. His funeral was held at Barkeryd Church and presided over by Reverend Johan Fovelin. He was buried on July 19th.⁸⁰

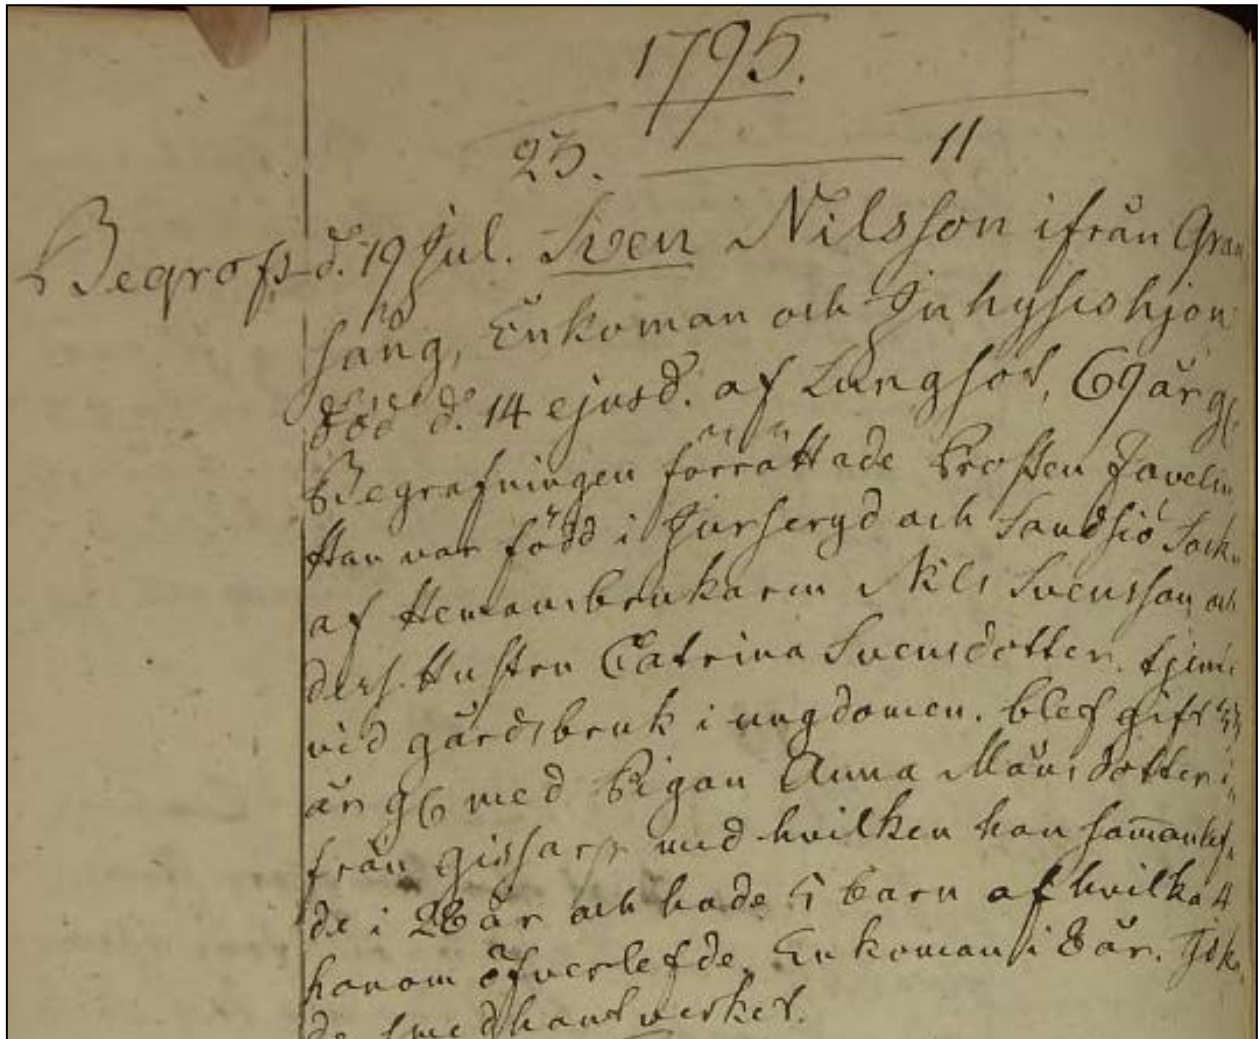

Inhysesshjon - Lodgers

Inhysesshjon, lodgers, were very common in 18th and 19th Century Sweden. When people got older, they could often no longer support themselves and had to reside with someone who could help provide for them. It was most common for lodgers to reside with their adult children and families. Lodgers could also be people who suffered from various diseases or injuries which prevented them from working.

As an inhysesshjon, Sven Nilsson was provided for by Jonas and Brita, his eldest son and daughter-in-law.

Sven Nilsson – A Skilled and Respected Laborer with Strong Values

Although it's impossible to know for certain what Sven Nilsson's personality was like, there is an ample amount of evidence within the records he is listed in to suggest that he was a highly skilled laborer that was well-respected throughout Barkeryd Parish. In Sven's time, most Swedish men practiced a single profession. Sven however, practiced three crafts throughout his life: farming, blacksmithing, and masonry. It must have taken several years of dedication and practice for Sven to obtain his certificate as a master-bricklayer. Since there probably wasn't enough work in Barkeryd Parish for Sven to make a living as a master-bricklayer alone, he also practiced being a smith and farmer, ensuring that he had variety of ways to support his family.

Sven Nilsson and his wife, Anna Månsdotter, were probably people of strong, Christian values. Jonas, their eldest son, would go on to serve as a churchwarden. Thus, it's highly likely that Sven and Anna's values had a great influence upon their children. Furthermore, all four of Sven and Anna's adult children had sons named Sven and daughters named Anna, revealing just how much their parents must have meant to them.

Tällö – The farm Johan Svensson was born

When Johan was born, his family lived at the farm of Tällö. The farmland at Tällö was owned by the Crown. At this time, the primary resident at Tällö was Håkarp Somerson, an officer in the military.⁸² Johan had at least one sister, Elin (b. 1734).⁸³

⁸² Information provided by Elizabeth Leek, a historian of Marbäck Parish

⁸³ Bälaryd Births, Vol.C:2 (1711-1789), page 163

While they lived in Bälaryd, Johan Svensson’s family attended Bälaryd Church. At this time, the church was very crowded during Sunday morning services, and the congregation had to stand.

It’s unknown how long Johan Svensson’s family lived at Tällö, since household records for Bälaryd Parish did not exist at that point in time.

Bälaryd Church

Johan probably started helping his father Sven work in the fields at a very young age. By the late 1750s, Johan was living in Frinnaryd Parish.⁸⁴ He may have moved there with his family at a young age, or he could have moved there by himself when he was a young man. Johan likely worked as a farmhand at various farms in Frinnaryd. In 1760, Johan moved to Marbäck Parish. By 1763, he was a farmhand at Stora Högaskog.⁸⁵

Frinnaryd Parish

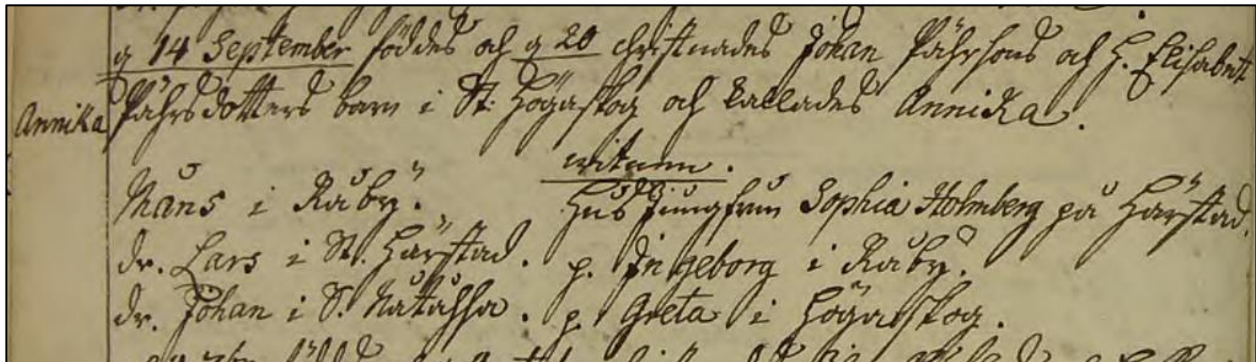

Frinnaryd Church

Frinnaryd Parish is just north of Bälaryd Parish, and is 40.58 square kilometers in area. The parish includes the villages of Sundhultsbrunn and Frinnaryd, where the parish church is located. The name of Frinnaryd derives from the male name Frinne (or Fridniut) + ryd “clearing.” Frinnaryd was first listed as “Frinnarydhum” in 1300. Like most parishes in Sweden, there are a few Bronze Age and Iron Age burial mounds scattered throughout the parish. Frinnaryd Church was built sometime in the late 12th Century. The church was built from granite, and was rebuilt after being destroyed by a fire in the 17th Century. Today, Frinnaryd is part of Aneby Municipality.

Annika Johansdotter, Anna Stina Johansdotter’s paternal grandmother, was born on September 14, 1741 in Stora Högaskog, a farm in northwest Marbäck Parish. Her parents were Johan Pehrsson and Elisabeth Pehrsson. On September 28th, she was baptized at Marbäck Church.⁸⁶ The witnesses at Annika’s baptism included Måns in Råby, farmhand Lars in Norra Härstad, farmhand Johan in Stora Nåtåssa, a young woman named Sophia Holmerg in Herrstad, maiden Ingeborg in Råby, and maiden Greta in Högaskog.

The Name “Annica” (“Annika”)

The name “Annica” (or “Annika”) is derived from the Low German name “Anneke,” which is the equivalent of “little Anna.” The name Anna stems from the Begrew Hanna or channa, which means “grace” or “pardoned.” December 9th is the name day for Anna in Sweden.

Some of Annika’s earliest memories may have included...

- The birth of her twin sisters Cajsa and Maria in 1745. (Annika was 4 years old).
- The birth of her sister, Elisabeth, in 1748 (Annika was 6 years old).
- The birth of her sister, Ingrid in 1750 (Annika was 9 years old).
- The Reign of King Frederik I (1720-1751). Frederik I was the king of Annika’s youth. Annika was 10 years old when Frederik died.

From a young age, Annika helped her mother, Elisabeth, with the chores around Stora Högaskog, such as cleaning the cottage they lived in, feeding the animals, cooking, and sewing. Annika also helped her mother take care of her younger siblings.

During the first two years of Annika’s life, Sweden was at war with Russia in a war called Hat’s Russian War. When Annika was a teenager, Sweden was involved in the Pomeranian War from 1757 to 1762.

When she became a young woman, Annika started working as a maid at Högaskog.

Marbäck Church– The church Johan Svensson and Annika Johansdotter’s family attended

Annika’s family attended Märback Church, located a couple of miles south of Stora Högaskog. For the first 42 years of Annika’s life, the pastor of the church was Samuel Peter Plander.

In 1760, Johan moved to Marbäck Parish.⁸⁷ It’s unknown if he first was a farmhand at Stora Högaskog or another farm.

The Mysterious Island of Rödholmen

Marbäck Church sat on a hill which overlooked Lake Ralången. Every few years, a mysterious island called Rödholmen appeared in the lake, before disappearing again a few weeks later. As Sweden was very superstitious during these times, the appearance of Rödholmen was often believed to herald evil events, such as war or famine. Although Rödholmen appeared in 1743 when Annika Johansdotter was two years old, the first time she would have remembered gazing upon the enigmatic island was in 1757, when she was 16 years old. Rödholmen’s appearance that year was said to have foreshadowed Sweden’s disastrous involvement within the Pomeranian War.

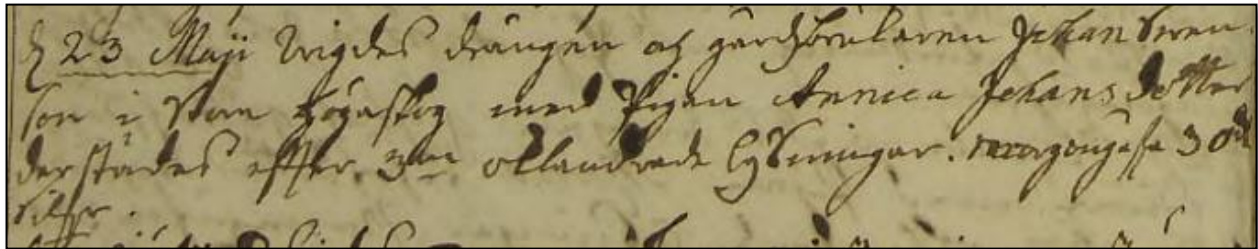

Sketch of Rödholmen

By 1763, Johan was a farmhand and leaseholder at Stora Högaskog. At this time, Annika was a maid on the farm. It’s probable that Johan and Annika met sometime from 1760 to 1763 at Stora Högaskog. The two could have courted for several months before their engagement. At the time of their wedding, Johan was 27 and Annika was 21 years old.

On May 23, 1763, Johan Svensson and Annika Johansdotter were married by Revered Plander. They may have been married at Marbäck Church, the vicarage of Revered Plander, or Stora Högaskog. The wedding of Johan and Annika was announced during three previous Sunday morning services at Marbäck Church, called banns. Johan Svensson delivered 30 lod (around 392 grams) of silver for the morgongåfva, or morning gift.⁸⁸

Hustru – Married Women

Hustru means “wife” in Swedish. In Old Sweden, one could easily distinguish if a young woman was married or not by the way she wore her hair. While single women usually kept their hair down, married women always kept it up and covered by a bonnet while in public. There is an old Swedish tale which demonstrates this. A young married woman was outside early one morning with hair uncovered, only wearing a smock. When she unexpectedly ran into her neighbour, she covered her hair with her smock, choosing to reveal her naked body rather than her hair.

Life at Stora Högaskog (1763-1793)

Ruins of an old croft at Stora Högaskog – It's possible that this was once the same croft that Johan and Annika's family lived at in the late 18th Century.

After their wedding, Johan and Annika continued to live at Stora Högaskog. They probably lived in a cottage close to the cottage where Annika's family lived. Johan eventually inherited the tenancy of the farm from Johan Pehrsson, Annika's father, although it's unknown when this occurred. Most likely, Johan was a tenant farmer who rented the land from someone else.

At some point, a couple named Nils Larsson and Stina Andersdotter moved to Stora Högaskog and became good friends with Johan and Annika.⁸⁹ Johan and Annika also had several friends who lived at the neighboring farms in the area, such as Lilla Högaskog, Öringe, Helgarp, and Råby.

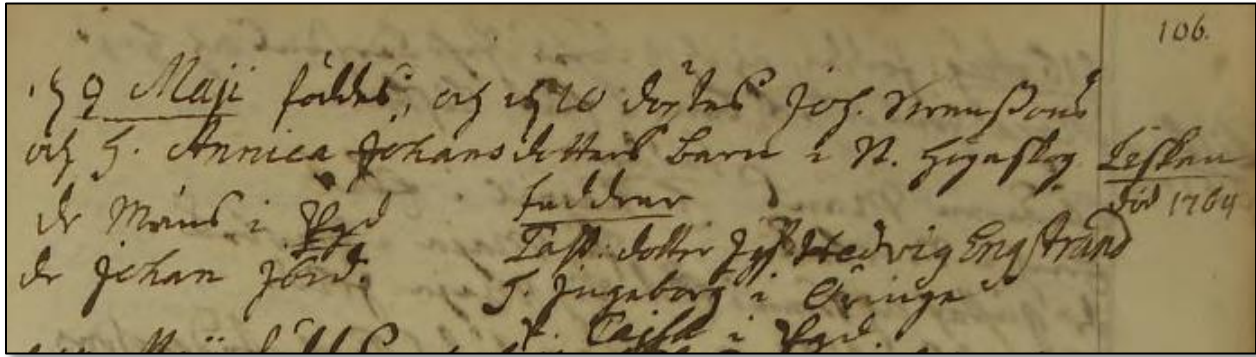

Types of Land in Old Sweden

In old times, there were three types of land in Sweden: frälsejord, kronojord, and skattejord. Frälsejord ("noble land") was land that was owned by nobility. Farmers that lived on frälsejord were called frälsebönder (farmers of the nobility) and paid taxes to the nobility that owned the land. Kronojord ("Crown land") was land that was owned by the Crown. Farmers that lived on kronojord were called "kronobönder" (Crown farmers). Prior to the reign of King Gustav Vasa, much of Sweden's land belonged to the Church and was called kyrkojord (Church land). In 1527, the Church's land was confiscated by the Swedish Crown and became Skattejord (taxed land), land that was owned by farmers (called skattebönder) who paid taxes to the Crown and Church.

On May 9, 1764, Annika gave birth to her and Johan's first child, Lisen. Lisen was baptized the following day at Marbäck Church. The witnesses at her baptism included farmhand Måns in Prästgård, pastor's daughter Miss Hedvig Engstrand, farmhand Johan in Prästgård, maid Ingeborg in Öringa, and maid Cajsa in Prästgård.⁹⁰

Pregnant women and mothers of infants were of special attention and care within the rural farm communities. It was common for other women in the village to treat them with a tasty bowl of porridge.

Sadly, Lisken died from measles just three months after she was born. She died on August 5, 1764 and was buried in the cemetery of Marbäck Church a week later.⁹¹

King Gustaf III's Visits Through Marbäck Parish

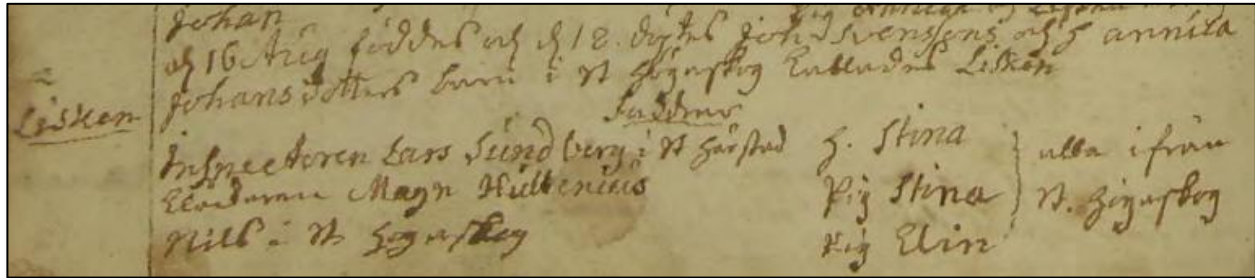

Plaque commemorating Gustaf III's visit to Rödholmen in 1766

On September 2, 1773, one of the biggest events in Johan and Annika's lives occurred when King Gustaf III rode through Marbäck parish. Gustaf III had previously ridden through the area in 1766 when he was a prince on the way to meet his future wife, Queen Sophia Magdalena. During both visits, Rödholmen, the mysterious island in Lake Ralången, was visible for a couple of weeks and visited by the king and his party. While ploughing in the fields, one of Johan and Annika's neighbours, such as Johan in Öringa, may have stopped by their farm, announcing "Kungen! Kungen rider genom Marbäck och skådar Rödholmen!" – "The King! The King rides through Marbäck and beholds Rödholmen!"

Gustaf III’s Russian War

Gustaf III’s War was a war that Sweden fought against Russia during 1788-1790. King Gustaf III instigated this war, believing that it would win over the support of his opposition. On June 21, 1788 the war began when a Swedish fleet encountered a Russian squadron off the island of Saaremaa. In August, Denmark-Norway declared war against Sweden in accordance with its treaty with Russian. The war between Sweden and Denmark-Norway was brief, however. The war between Sweden and Russian continued to wage through 1790, including a number of battles, such as the First Battle of Svensksund and the Second Battle of Svensksund. On August 14, 1790, the Treaty of Värälä was signed, ending Gustaf III’s Russian War.

Johan Svensson and the others at Stora Högaskog worked countless hours in the fields to support themselves. Their work days were the longest during the summer, when the sun didn't set until very late. Throughout the summers, they labored to cut down and gather all of the hay from a field.

Haymaking

“...of all summer work, haymaking was the most grueling. The size of a meadow was calculated according to the number of haymakers needed to mow it in a day. To scythe a whole field was slow work. The ground was not only littered with stones but also thick with bushes and shrubs.”

Household Examination of Johan Svensson and Annika Johansdotter's family at Stora Högaskog, Marbäck Parish: 1789-1795

Tragedy hit Johan and Annika’s family in early 1790. During January, Sven, Johan and Annika’s oldest child, suffered from head and chest pains. Annika probably spent a tremendous amount of time by her ailing son’s bed, doing her best to nurse him to recovery. On January 19, 1790, Sven passed away at the young age of 23. Sven was buried on January 24th in the cemetery of Marbäck Church.¹⁰³ Sven’s death was likely heart-breaking for Johan and Annika’s family and grieved by the community of Stora Högaskog.

The Death of Sven Johansson *

Johan Svensson and Annika Johansdotter sat in a state of worry on a freezing cold January evening in their cottage at Stora Högaskog. While Sven, their eldest son, had gone outside a few hours earlier to fetch some more firewood, a ferocious blizzard fell across the land. Finally, there was a loud pounding on the door; Sven had finally found his way back home. Although Johan and Annika were relieved to see that their son had returned, they were troubled by his grave appearance. Sven’s skin was icy cold and a purplish color, revealing that he was severely frostbitten. For the next few days, Sven lay close to the fireplace bundled under several blankets. He complained of head and chest and pains as his coughing grew more troubled and frequent. On January 24th, Sven’s life departed from him, devastating his parents and three younger siblings, Annica, Johannes, and Lisken.

The Fate of Lisa Johansdotter

By 1807, Lisa, Johan and Annika's youngest daughter, was working as a maid at a farm in Märback called Alekulle. Here, she became pregnant out of wedlock. On March 11, 1807, Lisa gave birth to a daughter named Anna Sofia.¹¹¹

Oäktas – Illegitimate Children

Although it was fairly common for children to be born out of wedlock in Sweden, it was largely looked down at by both the church and community prior to the 19th Century. An illegitimate child was often referred to as an oäkta. Illegitimate children could be significantly marginalized in society, having no right to their mother's inheritance until 1866, and no right to their father's inheritance until 1970. If his or her parents married, then he or she would no longer be considered as an oäkta.

After the birth of Anna Sofia, Lisa and her daughter lived with Johan and Annika for a brief time at Knäppet. On April 19, 1811, Lisa was married to Daniel Andersson, a farmhand from the farm Gullaryd. At this time, Lisa was living at the farm Råby.¹¹²

Shortly after they were married, Lisa, Daniel, and Anna Lisa moved to Stora Högaskog.¹¹³ In 1824, they moved to Järnäs Parish where they resided at a farm called Svenstorp Nedregård.¹¹⁴ Here, Daniel was a farmer. Lisa and Daniel lived at Svenstorp Nedregård for the remainder of their lives. Daniel Andersson died on March 19, 1858.¹¹⁵

Household Examination of Johan Svensson and Annika Johansdotter’s family at Siggarp, Marbäck Parish: 1789-1795

In 1793, Johan and Annika moved to the farm of Siggarp in the Marbäck. Siggarp was a short distance southeast of Stora Högaskog. By this time, the two were in their fifties, and it probably was becoming more difficult for them to work the land. A couple of farmhands named Nils Persson and Pehr Samuelsson also lived at Siggarp with Johan and Annika’s family.

Siggarp

Johan and Annika became grandparents on July 22, 1793 when their eldest daughter, Annica, gave birth to Johan Larsson. The two would have several more grandchildren born to them over the next couple of decades. In 1795, Johannes, their son, moved to Säby Parish where he was a farmhand. Johannes was married to Maria Håkansdotter, a maid from Säby Parish, on October 26, 1800.¹¹⁷

Johan and Annika lived at Siggarp for at least two years.¹¹⁸ While there, they may have spent a good deal of time gathering fresh water from the brook which ran through a valley close to their home. By 1804, Johan and Annika had left Siggarp.

Knäppet – Where Johan Svensson and Annikka Johansdotter spent their final days

By 1804, Johan and Annika had moved to Knäppet, a backstuga, or poor cottage, that was on the property of the farm Hattarp.¹¹⁹ Hattarp was a short distance north of Siggarp. Johan and Annika were now in their sixties, and all of their children had moved out to find work at other farms. Ingrid Johansdotter, Annika’s sister, also lived with Johan and Annika at Knäppet.

Household Examination of Johan Svensson and Annika Johansdotter’s family at Knäppet, Marbäck Parish: 1803-1808

In addition to the grandchildren they had from their daughter Annica and her husband Lars, Johan and Annika also had a number of grandchildren who were born to their son Johannes and his wife, Maria, as well as their granddaughter Anna Sofia, the daughter of their daughter Lisa. While being grandparents was probably a joy for the two, they also went through the hardship of seeing several of their grandchildren die in infancy. By the time Johan died in 1806, he had witnessed the births of nine grandchildren. Annika lived to see eleven grandchildren when she died in 1808.

In 1806, Johan's health began to fail. Johan passed away of natural causes on November 4, 1806 at the age of 70. He was buried on in the cemetery of Marbäck Church on November 9.¹²⁰

Johan Svensson (died)4th (buried)9th Born in Bälaryd parish the 5th of January from Knäppet. 1736. Came to this parish in 1760.

Illness: weakness of old age.

Age: 70 years and 10 months. Married.

After Johan's death, Annika continued to live at Knäppet. Her youngest daughter, Lisa, had a daughter named Anna Sofia who was born on March 11, 1807. After the birth of Anna Sofia, Lisa and Anna Sofia lived with Annika at Knäppet. Since Annica, Annika's eldest daughter lived only a short distance away at the farm of Häljarp, Annika probably saw Annica's family quite often. Meanwhile, Johannes, Annika's son, lived about half a day's distance away in Säby Parish. It's likely that Annika saw Johannes's family's from time to time.

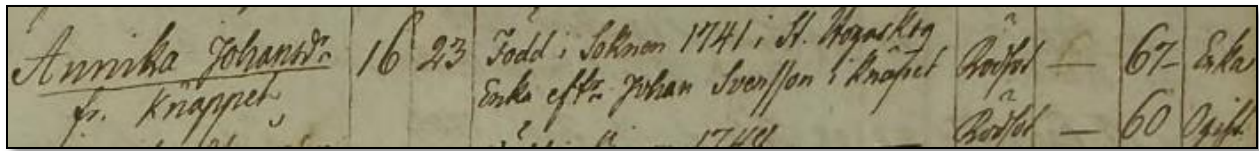

Annika survived her husband by almost two years. In 1808, she fell ill with dysentery, a disease that causes the inflammation of the intestines. Lisa, Annika's daughter, probably was busy caring for both her ailing mother and infant daughter Anna Sophia during this time.

Dysentery

Dysentery is an inflammatory infection of the intestines and colon, which is usually contracted via various bacterial infections. The disease can lead to severe diarrhea, blood in bowel movements, high fever, vomiting, and abdominal pain. If left untreated, dysentery can be fatal. While the disease is easily treatable today, a lack of proper medicinal care caused Annika Johansdotter's death. Annika's death was part of an outbreak of dysentery in Sweden during 1808-1803, in which over 50,000 people died.

¹²⁰ Marbäck Deaths, Vol. C:4 (1789-1820), page 189

Annika succumbed to the disease on September 16, 1808 at the age of 67. She was buried in the cemetery of Marbäck Church on September 23.¹²¹

Presented at the Court in Hallaryd on March 6th 1807.

On November 10th 1806 legal estate proceedings were held, on the request of the widow Annika Johansdotter, after her deceased husband Jan Svensson, who only possessed a cabin on the estates of Hattarp, and who died on November 4th.

He left three children, one son and two daughters.

The son Johannes Johansson and the daughter Annika Johansdotter have reached lawful age, whilst the daughter Lisa is under age. There was no male representative on her paternal side to be her guardian at the proceedings, so Anders Johansson in Hattarp accepted to take care of her rights until a legal guardian is elected.

The widow is reminded to declare the estate properly.

Early Years (1728-1758)

Håkan Persson, Anna Stina Johansdotter's maternal grandfather, was born around 1728. Although household examination records indicate that he was born in Lommaryd Parish¹²⁵, no record of him can be found in the births of Lommaryd for that year.¹²⁶ Little is known of his early life and there has been no information found documenting when his specific birth date was or whom his parents were. The only thing that is known about his parents is that his father's name was Per. Most likely, he worked as a farmhand in his younger years.

The Name “Håkan”

The name Håkan (Hèw-kan) is an Old Norse name which probably means “high-born”. The Norwegian variation of the name is “Håkon” and in earlier times, the name was written as “Hakon” or “Hakun.” The oldest known inscription of the name Håkan is from the 1000s A.D. In Sweden, the Name Day for Håkan is June 14th.

By 1759, Håkan was living and working as a farmhand at Sjötorp¹²⁷, a farm in west Linderås Parish that lay along the eastern banks of Lake Noen. During this time, Sjötorp was owned by Council Von Stockenström, the owner of Botorp Manor. Several farmhands and maids worked at Sjötorp during this time.

The Age of Liberty

The Age of Liberty (1718-1772) was a period in Swedish History where the authority of the monarch was very limited, while the Riksdag, the Swedish Parliament, held most of the power over Sweden’s political matters. During this time, power frequently shifted back and forth between the two political parties, the Hats and the Caps. For much of the Age of Liberty, Frederick I was king, reigning from 1720 to 1751. Sweden fought two wars during the Age of Liberty, Hats’ War, a war with Russia from 1741 to 1743, and the Pomeranian War a war in which Sweden aligned itself with France against Prussia during 1757-1762. In 1751, Adolph Frederick became king and maintained a much more defiant attitude towards the Riksdag in the two decades of his reign. The Age of Liberty ended in 1772, when King Gustaf III took the throne.

Maria Jönsdotter, Anna Stina Johansdotter's maternal grandmother, was born 1734 in Linderås. Records show that there was only one person born in Linderås in 1734 named Anna Johansdotter, so it is a strong possibility that she was born on December 9, 1734.¹²⁸ During this time, District Judge Carl Johan Bogeman owned Oberga. There was a mansion at Oberga, as well as several cottages surrounding it, where several crofters, farmhands, and maids lived.

Sännige – Where Maria Jönsdotter was a maid in 1758

At some point in Maria's youth, she moved to a farm named Sännige in Linderås. Sännige was just a short distance northeast of Sjötorp, and was also owned by Council Von Stockenström. Here, Maria lived and worked as a maid.

¹²⁸ Linderås Births, Vol. C:2 (1695-1737), page 146

Håkan and Maria probably met sometime in the late 1750s. Since they lived at neighboring farms, they probably saw each other quite often when they courted. The two probably became engaged sometime in 1757 or 1758. On October 22, 1758, Håkan and Maria were married.¹²⁹ They may have been married at Linderås Church, the vicarage at Linderås, or at Maria's family's home at Sänninge. They were either married by Samuel Petri Wiridén, the vicar of Linderås, or Benedictus Abrahamus Roswall, the chaplain of Linderås Parish.

Kyrkoherdes and Komministers
Vicars and Chaplains

A kyrkoherde, or vicar, was the leader of a church district in Sweden. A church district was comprised of one or two parishes. The vicar typically performed all of the church services for the parishes he lived in, as well as various services for the other parish in his church district. A komminister was a chaplain who assisted the vicar with his duties.

Life at Vallstorp (1758-1769)

After they were married, Håkan and Maria moved to Vallstorp, a farm in central Linderås. On August 8, 1759, Maria gave birth to a son named Johannes. Johannes was baptized on August 16th at Linderås Church. The witnesses at the baptism were Master Henrik Hagström, Jonas Jonsson in Botorp, Pehr in Sänninge, Maria Månsdotter in Vallstorp, Anika Persdotter in Sjötorp, maid Karin Jonsdotter in Siggarp, and Brita Jönsdotter in Sänninge.¹³⁰ It's possible that Anika Persdotter in Sjötorp was Håkan's sister and that Brita Jönsdotter in Sänninge was Maria's sister.

Old sheds at Vallstorp

In the late 18th Century, there were two farms at Vallstorp, Vallstorp Norrgård and Vallstorp Södergård. Vallstorp Södergård, the farm where Håkan and Maria's family resided, was also the residence of a sergeant from the Norra Vedbo Company. During this time, most of the inhabitants of Vallstorp lived at Vallstorp Norrgård. The families of Nils Månsson and Maria Månsson, Nils Andersson and Kirstin Svensdotter, and Jonas Jönsson also lived at Vallstorp during the 1760s.

On March 16, 1763, Maria gave birth to a second son named Nils.¹³¹ Nils was baptized three days later. The witnesses at his baptism included Nils Månsson in Vallstorp, Nils Andersson in Vallstorp, Pehr in Sänninge, housewife Karin in Siggarp, Karin Johansdotter in Wasstorp, and Brita in Wasstorp.

Life in Linderås Parish during 1750-1770

From 1757 to 1775, Samuel Petri Wiridén served as the Vicar of Linderås Parish. In 1750, Linderås Church was engaged in a legal dispute with the Bogeman family, the wealthiest family in the parish, over the displacement of several banners that hung upon the walls of the church in memory of several of the Bogeman family ancestors. At the end of the trial, it was ordered that the banners be placed back upon the walls. The same year, a ban was placed on brewing liquor in Linderås. This ban was abolished merely a decade later, however. In 1759, Bishop Rhyzelius visited Linderås Church and proposed that the parish build a new church. In 1760, a parochial school was established in Linderås under the direction of Pastor Rosvall. Rosvall was rather unpopular among the parish, as he was considered to be too strict.

Life at Älmås (1769-1789)

In 1769, Håkan and Maria's family moved to the farm of Älmås in Säby Parish.¹³³ Håkan worked here as a farmer. There were six households at Älmås when Håkan and Maria lived there, comprised by two farmhouses, three crofts, and one soldier's cottage. Håkan probably owned half of the land at Älmås and lived in a farmhouse with his family. Another farmer named Jöns Persson owned the other half of Älmås and lived there with his wife, Cherstin Persdotter, and son, Jacob.

Älmås – Where Håkan and Maria lived from 1760 to 1789

Skattebönder – Taxed Farmers

A skattebönde (free holder) was a farmer who owned his own land and paid taxes on it. The land owned by a skattebönde was called skatteländ. Although a skattebönde owned his farmland, he could lose his ownership of it if he didn't uphold certain responsibilities, such as paying taxes. If the land was ever stripped from a skattebönde, it became kronojord, or land owned by the Crown.

Skattebönder couldn't have tenants farm their land until the beginning of the 18th Century. They also couldn't sell their land to just anyone, but had to first offer their land to a family member. The wealth and social status of a skattebönde were usually determined by the size of his lands. Skattebönder were of much higher social status than crofters, but not as prominent as nobility.

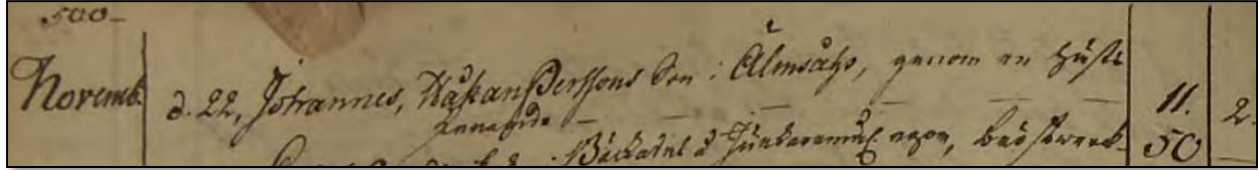

There were two crofts on Håkan Persson's portion of Älmås, Stugan and Fiskarhemmet. Stugan was resided at by a crofter named Anders Månsson, his wife, Britta Larsdotter, and two children, Johannes and Lena. A crofter named Sven Månsson lived at Fiskarhemmet with his wife, Annika Johansdotter, and daughter, Stina. There was also a soldier's cottage at Älmås called Kilenes. By the late 1770s, a poor widow named Lisa Tomasdotter was living at Kilenes with her son, Johannes Jonsson. Several farmhands and maids also lived at Älmås.¹³⁴ On October 26, 1769, Maria gave birth to Maria Håkansdotter, the mother of Anna Stina Johansdotter. Three days later, little Maria was baptized at the home of Magister Gylling. The witnesses at her baptism were master gardener Lars Måhlberg in Granbo, farmhand Oluf in Granbo, housewife Maja in Kåremålen, and maiden Brita in Älmås.¹³⁵

Tragedy struck Håkan and Maria's family on November 22, 1770, when Johannes, their eldest son, was killed by a runaway horse. Johannes was just 11 years old at the time of his death.¹³⁶ Johannes was buried in the cemetery of Säby Church.

The Death of Johannes Håkansson *

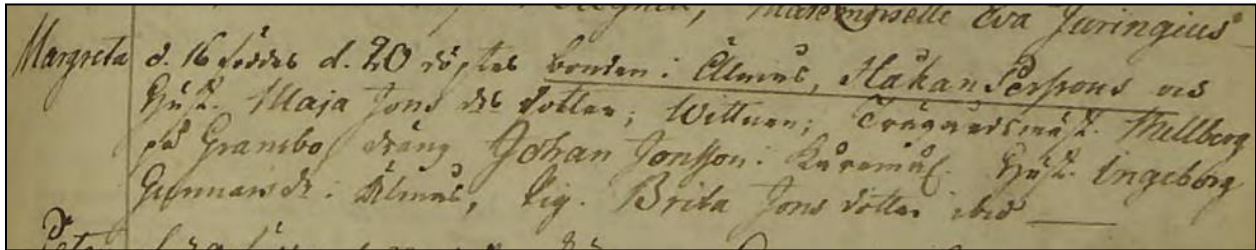

It was an unusually warm November day on Håkan Persson's farm at Älmås. His wife, Maria, was hanging laundry outside while her young daughters, Stina and Maria, sat close by, enjoying the sunshine. Meanwhile, their sons, Johannes and Nils, were playing in the barn. Although the boys knew they were not allowed to open the horses' stall without permission, Johannes knew Father was out in the field working and Mother was busy with her chores and the girls. They would never know, and they would only go in for a minute. Besides, it was an opportunity to show his little brother that he - the much more grown brother - knew how to handle the horses like Father could.

Johannes opened the stall, both boys giddy with excitement over their slyness. He then grabbed a rope from the corner and encircled the big brown horse's neck, pretending to lasso him. The horse became startled from the force of the rope being thrown and reared up, only to come down on young Johannes, crumpling his small body. Nils screamed, frozen and cowering in the corner just feet away from his big brother. Maria heard Nils and ran in frantically, just in time to see her eldest child take his last breath.

On March 16, 1772, a third daughter named Greta was born to Håkan and Maria. Greta was baptized four days later on March 20th. The witnesses at her baptism included Master Gardener Millberg in Gransbo, farmhand Johan Jonsson in Kåremåla, housewife Ingeborg Gunnarsdotter in Älmås, and maid Brita Jonsdotter in Älmås.¹³⁷

During 1773, Sweden was plagued with a serious famine, leading to the starvation of tens of thousands. Håkan and Maria's family must have struggled to produce enough crops at Älmås to support themselves during this time. By this time, Nils, their oldest son, was probably helping his father in the fields. It must have been extremely stressful for Håkan and Maria to provide for their four children during this time.

The Famine of 1773

In 1773, Sweden endured one of its last major famines. A series of bad crops in 1772 and 1773 led to serious repercussions for the country's inhabitants. Eastern Norway was also affected, and around 100,000 people died during this famine. Numerous farms throughout Sweden struggled just to produce enough crops to feed their own residents. During this time, it was common for poor children to wander throughout the countryside, requesting food and water from farmers.

Most of Håkan and Maria's children grew up at Älmås in the 1780s. Their three daughters, Stina, Maja, and Greta, helped Maria with her chores at Älmås and assisted her with raising Johannes, their younger brother.

The crofters who lived at Älmås helped Håkan with work in the fields. They probably worked six days a week for him. In return, Håkan was responsible for ensuring that they were adequately paid, fed, and provided for.

Legostadgor – Contracts between Farmers and Employees

Legostador was the legal relationship between a farmer and his employees. Any time a crofter, farmhand, or maid was hired by a farmer to work for him and live on his farm, a contract was written, regulating the employee's wages and working hours. Farm labor was compensated through food, lodging, clothing, and a small amount of cash.

A contract included conditions such as the following:*

1. Four riksdaler coins payable annually on October 24th.
2. The crofter shall work six days a week year round, for a consideration of 48 skillingar a day. In addition, from April 24th to October 24th, the crofter is approved to keep a maid to help his household with their tasks, who is to be compensated 16 skillingar a day by the crofter.
3. The crofter shall receive sufficient food for his oxen.
4. The crofter shall annually receive two barrels of rye for the fixed price of 15 dollars per riksgälds.
5. Six quarts of cranberries are to be annually delivered by the crofter to his employer.
6. The crofter is allowed 4 free days during the summer.

The different families at Älmås mutually relied upon once another in several aspects of their lives. Whenever a cottage needed to be repaired, a fence needed to be setup, or a new barn needed to be built, the men of Älmås worked together to accomplish those tasks. Likewise, the women of Älmås helped raise each other's children and took care of one another during times of illness.

Communal Life in Old Swedish Villages

“The village was the peasant’s castle. Its raison d’être was mutual assistance. In illness, want, or danger they came to each others’ assistance. Always there was someone in the village who knew how to drive out evil with fire and steel. If a cow fell sick, it was handy to have a neighbor who knew how to cure it. Birth and marriage, death and funerals, all were the common concern of the village council.”

The Final Years of Håkan Persson and Maria Jönsdotter (1789-1809)

Önnarp – Where Håkan Persson spent his final days

Around 1789, Håkan and Maria’s family moved to Önnarp, a farm in northwest Säby Parish.¹⁶⁰ Here, Håkan lived the final days of his life. During this time, there were two cottages at Önnarp, Dagstorp and Hagarp. While Håkan family’s lived at Önnarp, a crofter named Jonas Svensson (b. 1756) lived at Dagstorp with his wife, Catharina Månsdotter (b. 1765), son, Sven, and a widow named Annika Persdotter (b. 1718). A crofter named Anders Andersson (b. 1764) lived at Hagarp with his wife, Catharina Larsdotter (b. 1754), two children, and a widow named Gunilla Larsdotter (b. 1731).

Crossed Out Names in Household Examinations

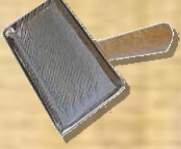

It’s common within household examinations to find names that are crossed out. This indicates that the person whose name is crossed out was no longer living at the household. There were two reasons for this: either the person died or they moved to another household. To the right of the crossed-out person’s name are usually some notes which list the reason why that person was no longer at that household. If an entire family left a household together to move to another farm, then there is usually a big X over that family in the household examinations.
